Dear Jarved:-

I have enclosed in this mailing two more packages of videos pertaining to Champ and those directly/indirectly connected to the subject. Animal X tv series had my friend Richard Smith on an show on lake monsters, and his scene was on Champ, while nearby Boisvert was on Memphre. Also, I located an Canadian video that was compiled from one-half from an old Arthur C. Clarke's British tv series, MYSTERIOUS WORLD, and some new footage on Memphre.

In our telephone discussion I mention America's foremost cryptid researcher,,Loren Coleman, who I know - and which I was very surprise you were unaware of (go on the web, and see how many sites he is listed, he has his own web site one can contact him by) and gives a quick preview of him.

I am locating a few more videos that pertains to Champ, which should exhaust my video library on the subject. Hope this is of some help to past documentary filmmakers on the subject and how they handle the topic - good and bad!

I also don't know if this is of some help, but my French contact in Europe sent me an French tv video which due to the different tv scanning system, won't play on my VCR - and I think he mention that the video had some American lake monsters on it that was shown on this French documentary on "monsters". Unfortunately, the only place around here that can rescan it into the American system wanted a small fortune to do so - and I am uncertain as to what is on it. If you can rescan it into the American, I would be happy to loan you my original copy to work with.

One more thing, I assume(?)that Doug Hajicek did sent you a copy of what I had sent him of my 4-part article on Champ that I had published in an mollusc(!) journal in 1995? That article would be of help to you regarding Champ's controversy.

If I can be of further help, let me know.

Sincerely,

Gary Mangiacopra

Mr. Edwin Howard Reitan, Jr.
Archivist - Color Television
c/o ITT GILFILLAN

Dear Mr. Reitan:-

The above mailing address was stated on your website on the forgotten early history of color television development immediately after the post-WW II era, if anyone wishes to contact you on this topic.

On your website, you had a segment that covers the period of time when the rival CBS color television system was being broadcasted regularly from June-October 1951 from New York City. This is a period of time that I am specifically interested in because it pertains to a research project that I am currently undertaking, and which you may be the only person who can still answer many questions about it.

I have consulted contemorary newspapers, weekly magazines, and especially the monthly Popular Science/Popular Mechanics/ Science & Mechanics/Mechanic Illustrated for 1950/51 on the introduction of CBS color television system. However, I should specified that I am primary interested in one 1951 CBS regularly color broadcasted show because of the individual who hosted the show.

The show was called, THE WORLD IS YOURS, and was hosted by wildlife naturalist and author, Ivan T. Sanderson. From my research it has reveal that Ivan Sanderson made color television history as being the first host of a regular broadcasted color tv series. And that his color program series ran for a total of 69 shows from June-September 1951, Monday-Friday from 4:30-5:00 p.m. His time slot was then replaced with the color tv variety show hosted by Mel Torme for about 3 weeks before the CBS color system ceased.

I am doing a biography on Ivan Sanderson's life and numerous achievements, and was totally surprise that he had a color tv series in 1951. The few remaining persons who knew Sanderson informed me that he had never told them he had hosted this color tv show at all, and could not answer any questions at all about the show or its series of programs. And importantly, why would he get involved in such a television project, considering that at best, only about 1,000 CBS color adapted television sets, mostly made by do-it-yourselvers, could view his show in color.

Further inquiry on my part to the Museum of Television and Radio history in New York City reveal that their data base of early surviving television shows, do not have any kinescope black and white copies of this show surviving.

on these 1920s & 30s Commander Dyott's wildlife films? Especially SAVAGE GOLD, which is considered his best and most controversial documentary?

In addition, 30 years later, producer Commander Dyott adventures would be re-created in a "doco-drama" motion picture from Warner Brothers studios in 1958 under the title: MANHUNT IN THE JUNGLE. The producer of the film was Cedric Francis and directed by Tom McGowan. The film was not a success, critical or financial, when it was released.

Do you have any background information on this obscure 1958 Warner Brothers doco-drama?

An additional inquiry on my part would be on an motion picture that was a semi-fiction version of these exploitive documentaries of that time.

This was the original 1931 Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature film, TRADER HORN, that stared Harry Carry, as the African explorer. This early sound film would now be considered politically incorrect in its depiction of the native people. It's importance as a comparison to the independently made documentaries versus the leading motion picture studio at that time.

I am especially interested if you may possess a copy of the privately printed book on the behind the scenes adventures of the TRADER HORN filming crew, written by the film's director:

HORNING INTO AFRICA by W.S. Van Dyke (1931), privately printd.

And especially the series of newspaper articles written by John McClain, who was an ship news reporter for the defunct, THE NEW YORK SUN newspaper of New York City. Briefly, McClain accompied the TRADER HORN filming crew for six months and had sent a series of articles to the newspaper, THE SUN, on the adventures of their African location filming. This would be circa May 1929 to October(?) 1929 (the dates may be slightly in error).

If your library does have any background information on these two separate requests (producer George M. Dyott and the 1931 film, TRADER HORN), please inform me as to the cost of copying and postage.

Sincerely,

Gary S. Mangiacopra

Dear Mr. Houston:-

I was recommended to contact you by the Martin & Osa Johnson Safari Museum (copy of their reply enclosed). This was due to an inquiry I had made to their archives pertaining to the Johnson's connections with Arthur B. Sanderson and his son, Ivan Terence Sanderson over a three decade period of time.

I am in the process of researching the history of naturalist/writer Ivan T. Sanderson (1911-1973) for a biography on him and his achievements, especially during the years of 1946-circa 1960 which is not at all well documented of what he was doing both professional and personally.

Only recently I was able to obtain the newspaper morgue clipping file on Sanderson from the now defunct New York Herald-Tribune newspaper. Among their clippings was a 1953 article on one of television personalities of that time (copy of article enclosed).

This 1953 mini-biography of Sanderson refered to his contact with the Johnsons' and their wildlife films. Ivan was hired to review the Johnsons's film to be re-edited into the Olsa Johnson's wildlife series, "The Big Game Hunt", and by chance, had watched the film that was taken by the Johnsons that showed his father, Arthur B., being attacked and seriously injured by a charging rhino. Ivan's father died sometime after this rhino attack, but the details are conflicting and sketchy.

However, Ivan refered that this film segment of the rhino attack was incorporated into the 1928 film, "Simba". But the Johnsons's museum informed me that this segment was not included in the restored 90 minute video version of this documentary. Referring to the 1928 New York Times motion picture adds index of this documentary, it was "proclaimed 4 years to make, 2

I had reach a completed dead-end of locating any further information on Sanderson's color tv series when I came across your unique website on color television developmental history. If anyone may know any further information on this 1951 color program nature series, it would possibly be you.

My inquiry to you is this: do you possess any information on THE WORLD IS YOURS show that I may be able to obtain copies of for my research on this aspect of his life?

If you do not have such information, could you suggest where I may be able to further inquire on this topic? I have consulted the CBS retired engineers website and did come across one brief humerous account about Sanderson's show from one retired engineer of the era. However, any surviving CBS tv engineers would be very small in number that I could try to contact today.

If I may also ask permission at this time, could I be allowed to included a color print out from your website on the 1951 CBS color signal logo that was taken from a slide from one of your contacts, and the picture of the only surviving 1951 CBS color tv consul?

I have enclosed an SASE for your reply at your leisure in regards to my lengthly letter.

Sincerely,

Gary S. Mangiacopra

Dear Mr. Becker:-

I was recommended to contact you by the Martin & Osa Johnson Safari Museum (copy of their reply enclosed). This was due to an inquiry I had made to their archives pertaining to the Johnson's connections with Arthur B. Sanderson and his son, Ivan Terence Sanderson, over a three decade period of time.

I am in the process of researching the history of naturalist/writer Ivan T. Sanderson (1911-1973) for a biography on him and his achievements, especially during the years of 1946-circa 1960 which is not at all well documented of what he was doing both professional and personally.

Only recently I was able to obtain the newspaper morgue clipping file on Sanderson from the now defunct New York Herald-Tribune newspaper. Among their clippings was a 1953 article on one of television personalities of that time (copy of article enclosed).

This 1953 mini-biography of Sanderson refered to his contact with the Johnsons' and their wildlife films. Ivan was hired to review the Johnsons's film to be re-edited into the Olsa Johnson's wildlife series, "The Big Game Hunt", and by chance, had watched the film that was taken by the Johnsons that showed his father, Arthur B., being attacked and seriously injured by a charging rhino. Ivan's father died sometime after this rhino attack, but the details are conflicting and sketchy.

The Johnson's museum archives informed me that in 1996/98 they were contacted by you, and that you were also the editor of the tv syndicated Big Game Hunt series.

My inquiry to you is several fold:

1) Does this circa 1952 26-part syndicated tv series still exist? Or is it like many other early syndicated series from television golden age have been lost forever due to no interested in the topic and by sheer neglect?

2) If this series still does exist, is any copies of the ½ hour show available for viewing? Possibly in the archives of the Museum of Television and Radio history in New York City?

3) It was refered [book: They Married Adventure-Lives of Martin and Olsa Johnson (1992)] that

Ivan Sanderson had narrated some (all?) of these ½ hour shows. Is this correct? And if so, how many of the shows did he do a voiceover?

4) According to the 1953 interview, Ivan had actually helped edited some of the Johnson's footage. Plus additional footage of his personal zoo animals were taken and included into the separate ½ hour shows. Is this correct also?

5) Regarding the chance incident of a random can of film being look at and being revealed that it showed film of Ivan's father being killed by the rhino incident. Do you recall anything about this incident, and did it happened as it was claimed to be? A sheer chance coincidence?

6) Did you have any personal contact with Ivan Sanderson, and do you recall anything al all about him?

I have been able to locate several persons who had met Sanderson personally (even just once) and they have related their memories of him as an individual.

This is an important project of mine, as these people are of an advance age and I am trying to obtain what they recall to preserve their information before it is lost forever.

It is hope that you maybe able to help with background information to the above series of questions of mine on the biography of Ivan Sanderson's life.

I have enclosed an SASE for your reply at your leisure. If you are unable to help in this matter, it would be appreciated if you could suggest to me where I maybe able to further inquire upon the matter of this forgotten wildlife tv series.

Sincerely,

Gary S. Mangiacopra

DATE: 10 June 2005
TIME: 4:15-4:18 P.M.
TOPIC: Olsa Johnson's circa 1952 syndicated tv series - THE BIG GAME HUNT

I talk with Lester Becker (see 3 May 2005 reply from the Johnson's Safari Museum in Kansas) who is in his 70s and still live in Connecticut (but not to the then address in Westport, Connecticut), but whose telephone number was still valid.

I briefly discuss with Lester Becker of his involvement with this circa 1952 tv series. Unfortunately, he informed me that he did not recall anything after half-a-century of passage of time. He did confirm that he did edited the Johnson's films for the 26 part-½ hour programs - but that was all. He does NOT recall anything regarding the name of Ivan T. Sanderson and his involvement with the tv series, as Sanderson was a voice over narrator and had his jungle animals in each of the program tv shows. He just could not help at all with these 5 decades old shows.

Overall, this was another dead end on any information of what Sanderson was doing in the early 1950s. Nevertheless, I did established that I had contacte him and got the above comments.

TV Color Unit Hit As Possibly Useless

By The Associated Press

The Zenith Corp. said yesterday FCC's recent decision on color television might require new set-buyers to pay 200 million dollars a year for equipment "which may never be used."

That was Zenith's answer to the Federal Communications Commission's September 1 call on manufacturers for a quick change in television receiver design.

The request was made in connection with the agency's tentative selection of Columbia Broadcastings Color system for general use. The proposed change in receivers would enable future sets to tune in CBS color signals in black and white as well as current standard televising. The commission suggested the change be made within 30 days.

Time Too Short

Most manufacturers have replied that set designs can not be revised on short notice. Some have offered to cooperate with changed production early next year. Others have asked FCC to further study the whole color picture and there has been talk of taking the matter into the courts unless this is done.

Zenith, which has headquarters in Chicago, told FCC in a statement that the proposed dual tuning switch for new sets could be put in perhaps by next May 1, but that this will add from $30 to $40 to each retail price tag.

"This is a severe penalty for the public to pay," said the company. "The switch may never be needed. At the present rate of sales, the cost to the public might be as much as 200 million dollars a year for a feature which may never be used."

Other manufacturers statements received yesterday expressed these viewpoints:

Magnovox of Fort Wayne, Ind.—The proposal "involves a complete redesign of present receivers" which cannot be done this year.

Tele-tone, New York City—The commission should make a definite, not a tentative choice, so that set-makers could avoid the addition of possibly "valueless" equipment to their product.

"High Price" for Color

Emerson, New York City—Any changeover will require "months rather than days." The company said FCC's request comes at a time when 80 percent of its engineering talent has been assigned to production for the armed forces.

Trans-Vision, New Rochelle, N. Y.—"Your proposal asks a high price for color TV. If, with the vast pool of technical people engaged in this work, a compatible color system cannot be introduced without affecting present subscribers (TV users), we feel that no color system at all should be commercialized.

Sentinel, Evanston, Ill.—Willing to change over, but this will take 8 to 10 months and will add $35 to $50 to the cost of each set.

Stewart Warner, Chicago—Working on it but it cannot be done in the suggested time.

Va. Mental Care Criticized

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 2 (AP)—Given proper care, more than half of Virginia's mental patients could be returned to normal living within 3 to 6 months, according to Dr. Joseph E. Barrett.

"As matters stand now, less than 40 percent of our entering patients recover within the average period of a year," the State Commissioner of Mental Hygiene and Hospitals said in a magazine article published today.

"All too often too many of them stay on for years," he added, "often growing worse rather than better, remaining in the care of the Commonwealth to the end of their lives, simply because we have not given them the care we could give if we had the space, and the equipment and the trained people that are necessary for that care."

But the State's mental hospitals do not have those things, because they "lack the money to pay for them," Barrett said.

The Commissioner's article appeared in the initial issue of "Mental Health in Virginia," a new monthly published today by the State Health Department and the Mental Hygiene Society of Virginia.

Barrett noted the 1950 General Assembly's appropriation of $14,303,905 for the current biennium allows the hospitals to spend $1.54 per day per patient.

After physical upkeep of the patients, he said, this leaves 75 cents a day per patient for salaries of personnel—from furnace-tenders and garbage collectors to the highly trained medical men who superintend the hospitals; all salaries must come out of that daily allowance.

Mr. and Mrs. Kettle Vacation In Paris

By Richard L. Coe

WHEN BETTY MacDONALD writ "The Egg and I" and started us all off on the Kettle family, she could hardly have known whither she was leading us. I only hope Betty is still drawing coin of the Republic from Universal-International, whose "Ma and Pa Kettle on Vacation" has taken over the Capitol screen.

This is the fifth—yes, only the fifth—in the dogged series personified by Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride and an immensely profitable series it's been. Not even Betty MacDonald, I'll warrant, could think up something new to write about the Kettles and, for the life of me, I certainly can't. Anyway, as has lately been usual, Ma and Pa have shaken from their tawdry brood and are now in Paris on a series of adventures that might have been plotted by Mack Sennett.

In this slapstick the indomitable Marjorie and the tireless Percy are heartily at home and their admirers will now faithfully be awaiting their next. I'm told that Percy is getting a bit weary of the indignities he has to undergo as far as expanded energy is concerned, but a follow-up to "Vacation" is assured and since our town is filled with vacationers I imagine everyone will get in the spirit of it all admirably, though it's a very different Paris from "Moulin Rouge."

Gloria De Haven, offspring of a famed vaudeville team, Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, headlines the stage bill and is far more at home on the platform than most of Hollywood's musical comedy gals, even though she suffers from having to stick to the mike. Dark and vivacious, Gloria emphasizes the songs, doing very nicely with Jane Avril's "Moulin Rouge" ballad and subtly giving a plug for the theater next door. She's at her best, though when joined by the bill's tap dancer, Ray Malone, a turn which allows her to break from the mike.

Dancer Malone has a good tap act, though his effort at some Dr. Jekyll comedy is pretty much lost in the big house. The week's comedian is Monologist Dave Barry and the Three Kanazawas open the bill with their tumbling.

THE "OKLAHOMA!" company's hospital entertainment unit, with Mary Marlo and Jerry Mann among the mainstays, spent Thursday afternoon at Bethesda Naval Hospital, putting on a program through the valiant if financially impoverished hospital committee of the American Theater Wing directed by May Redmond Smith . . . Sorry everyone can't see Comedian Mann's hilarious version of how Victor Moore might play Jud Fry in the musical's smokehouse scene, a mighty clever piece of mimicry.

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER, observing that Pittsburgh was the great Eleanora Duse's last stand, has recovered beautifully from her most recent visit to theaterland's most awesome territory . . . Despite tiptop critical acclaim, Holy Week theater attendance in Pittsburgh was at low ebb; this, albeit, was not the cause of Miss Skinner's shudders . . . At a listless evening performance, she de- performances, for a while at least, of "Paris '90" after a tour which has taken her from coast to coast, Canada to the Gulf, since September 15 . . . Next? . . . "Two weeks of sleep" vows the cheerful Cornelia.

THIS IS the afternoon, 2:45 the hour, for the National Symphony-Washington Ballet production of "Adventures in Oz," directed by Lisa Gardiner and Mary Day.

ADD VISITORS: Duncan Renaldo, whom you probably know better as "The Cisco Kid" (that is, assuming you don't remember him in "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" or "Trader Horn," is in town with his hoss, Diablo, to appeal daily in the National Guard's Home Show, opening its week's stand today.

"POLIFEM," the early eighteenth century opera by G. Bononcini, will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night by Catholic University's music department under the direction of Frederick Fall in the pus theater . . . John Dan heads both of the two nating casts, the first Was ton production of the which has previously been only once before in this cou . . . Phone reservations ma made at ADams 2-6000, e sion 433.

Anguish

From the sound of their mo ing voices, this, observes A Russell, is how the blues si ers look. This comedy mom is one of many such as English singer will be offer tonight in her satirical C stitution Hall "recital."

The amazing adventures of a man who fled into the jungle to escape civilization—and discovere

BY ALEXANDER LAI

The lure of diamonds and gold has led me—a 42-year-old prospector and engineer—into many a hazardous adventure. And today my wife, Vilma, and I are more at home in the vast Venezuelan jungle, or in our 60-foot thatched hut near Hacha Falls, on the Carrao River, than anywhere else on earth.

There was a time when I was a small cog in what the world calls civilization, but I chose to leave its worries and confusion 14 years ago. The Russians had just annexed Latvia, the land of my birth, and I felt that I must escape that kind of a future.

Wanting to get as far away as possible, I headed for South America. I knew a little self-taught English, but no Spanish, when I arrived there and started working on government road construction, but I pieced together such information as I could understand and soon became fascinated by stories of a vast unexplored "lost world" somewhere beyond the Orinoco River—not far from Ciudad Bolivar.

Indians were persistent in their belief that evil spirits lived in the dense jungles of this land of mystery. And I sometimes heard talk of strange "monkey folk" that were supposed to exist on top of the gigantic plateaus that towered majestically over the forbidding forests. I was young, then, and adventuresome, and even before I set eyes on the fabulous territory which the natives call La Gran Sabana, I began building my dream of exploring the wilderness.

I took my first step when I had an unexpected opportunity to fly over Venezuela's "lost world." We had flown over Cerro Bolivar, which is Venezuela's $500,000,000 mountain of 67 per cent pure iron ore, and left it far behind when the flat brown plains turned to jungle green and we suddenly saw dozens of solid rock mountains rising a mile high against the horizon. As we approached we could see that the timberline stopped at 3,000 feet and the sheer cliffs were appalling.

We flew between two of these towering giants and I felt as if I were soaring over an awesome prehistoric world. There were deep valleys where no white man had ever set foot, uncharted lakes and rivers—and the huge streaks of white quartz on the mountain tops were a sure indication of gold.

We saw Auyan-tepui, or Devil's Mountain, and on it we spotted a small plane sitting out a lonely and never-ending vigil. It was the plane of the daredevil flyer, Jimmy Angel, who has spent years soaring over South and Central America looking for lost gold. He landed his plane on Devil's Mountain back in 1937, but found that he could not take off after landing. He made a somewhat hurried survey of the spot, then he and his companions spent three weeks in a hazardous descent on the south side of the mountain.

I have forgotten anything I may ever have heard of the hardships of that trip, but I will never forget Angel's words, as they've been reported to me, about what he found on that formidable pile of rock.

"I saw outcroppings of gold up there so big that it drove me crazy to leave all that precious metal," he said. "I saw evidence of diamonds tha

I put in my appearance. Brilliant red bugs sucked the juice from the base of a strange flower, a butterfly that looked like a flying turtle went by, and there were many strange small animals.

As I walked about, a terrifically hot sun beat down upon me. My boots, scraping through the surface soil, uncovered big veins of quartz—both red and white—indicating the presence of gold. And the volcanic nature of the whole mountain suggests a great wealth of diamonds.

Our food was short and a great storm threatened, so I did not remain long on top of Auyan-tepui but, as we sped off toward home, I knew that some day I would return.

In the meantime, great good fortune was with me in another adventure. One day last February, I met an old Indian chief who told me that his squaw was dying. There was nothing the witch doctor could do to save her. I offered to see what I could do and went with the chief to his hut. The squaw had some kind of fever—I don't know what—and I offered her some of my "white magic" (atabrine tablets).

A few days later the chief visited me again. The squaw had recovered.

"Chief will make you rare gift," he said. "Chief will thank you for saving squaw. He will make you chief of Canaima (an area having beautiful waterfalls where only a few white men ever have set foot.)"

Then he asked, "What do you want most?"

I replied, "I need many eyes (diamonds)—I need many eyes to buy white man's magic for sick Indians."

The chief said he would show me where to find them and he arranged for a secret trip on which I was to accompany a party of eight Indians in two long dugouts.

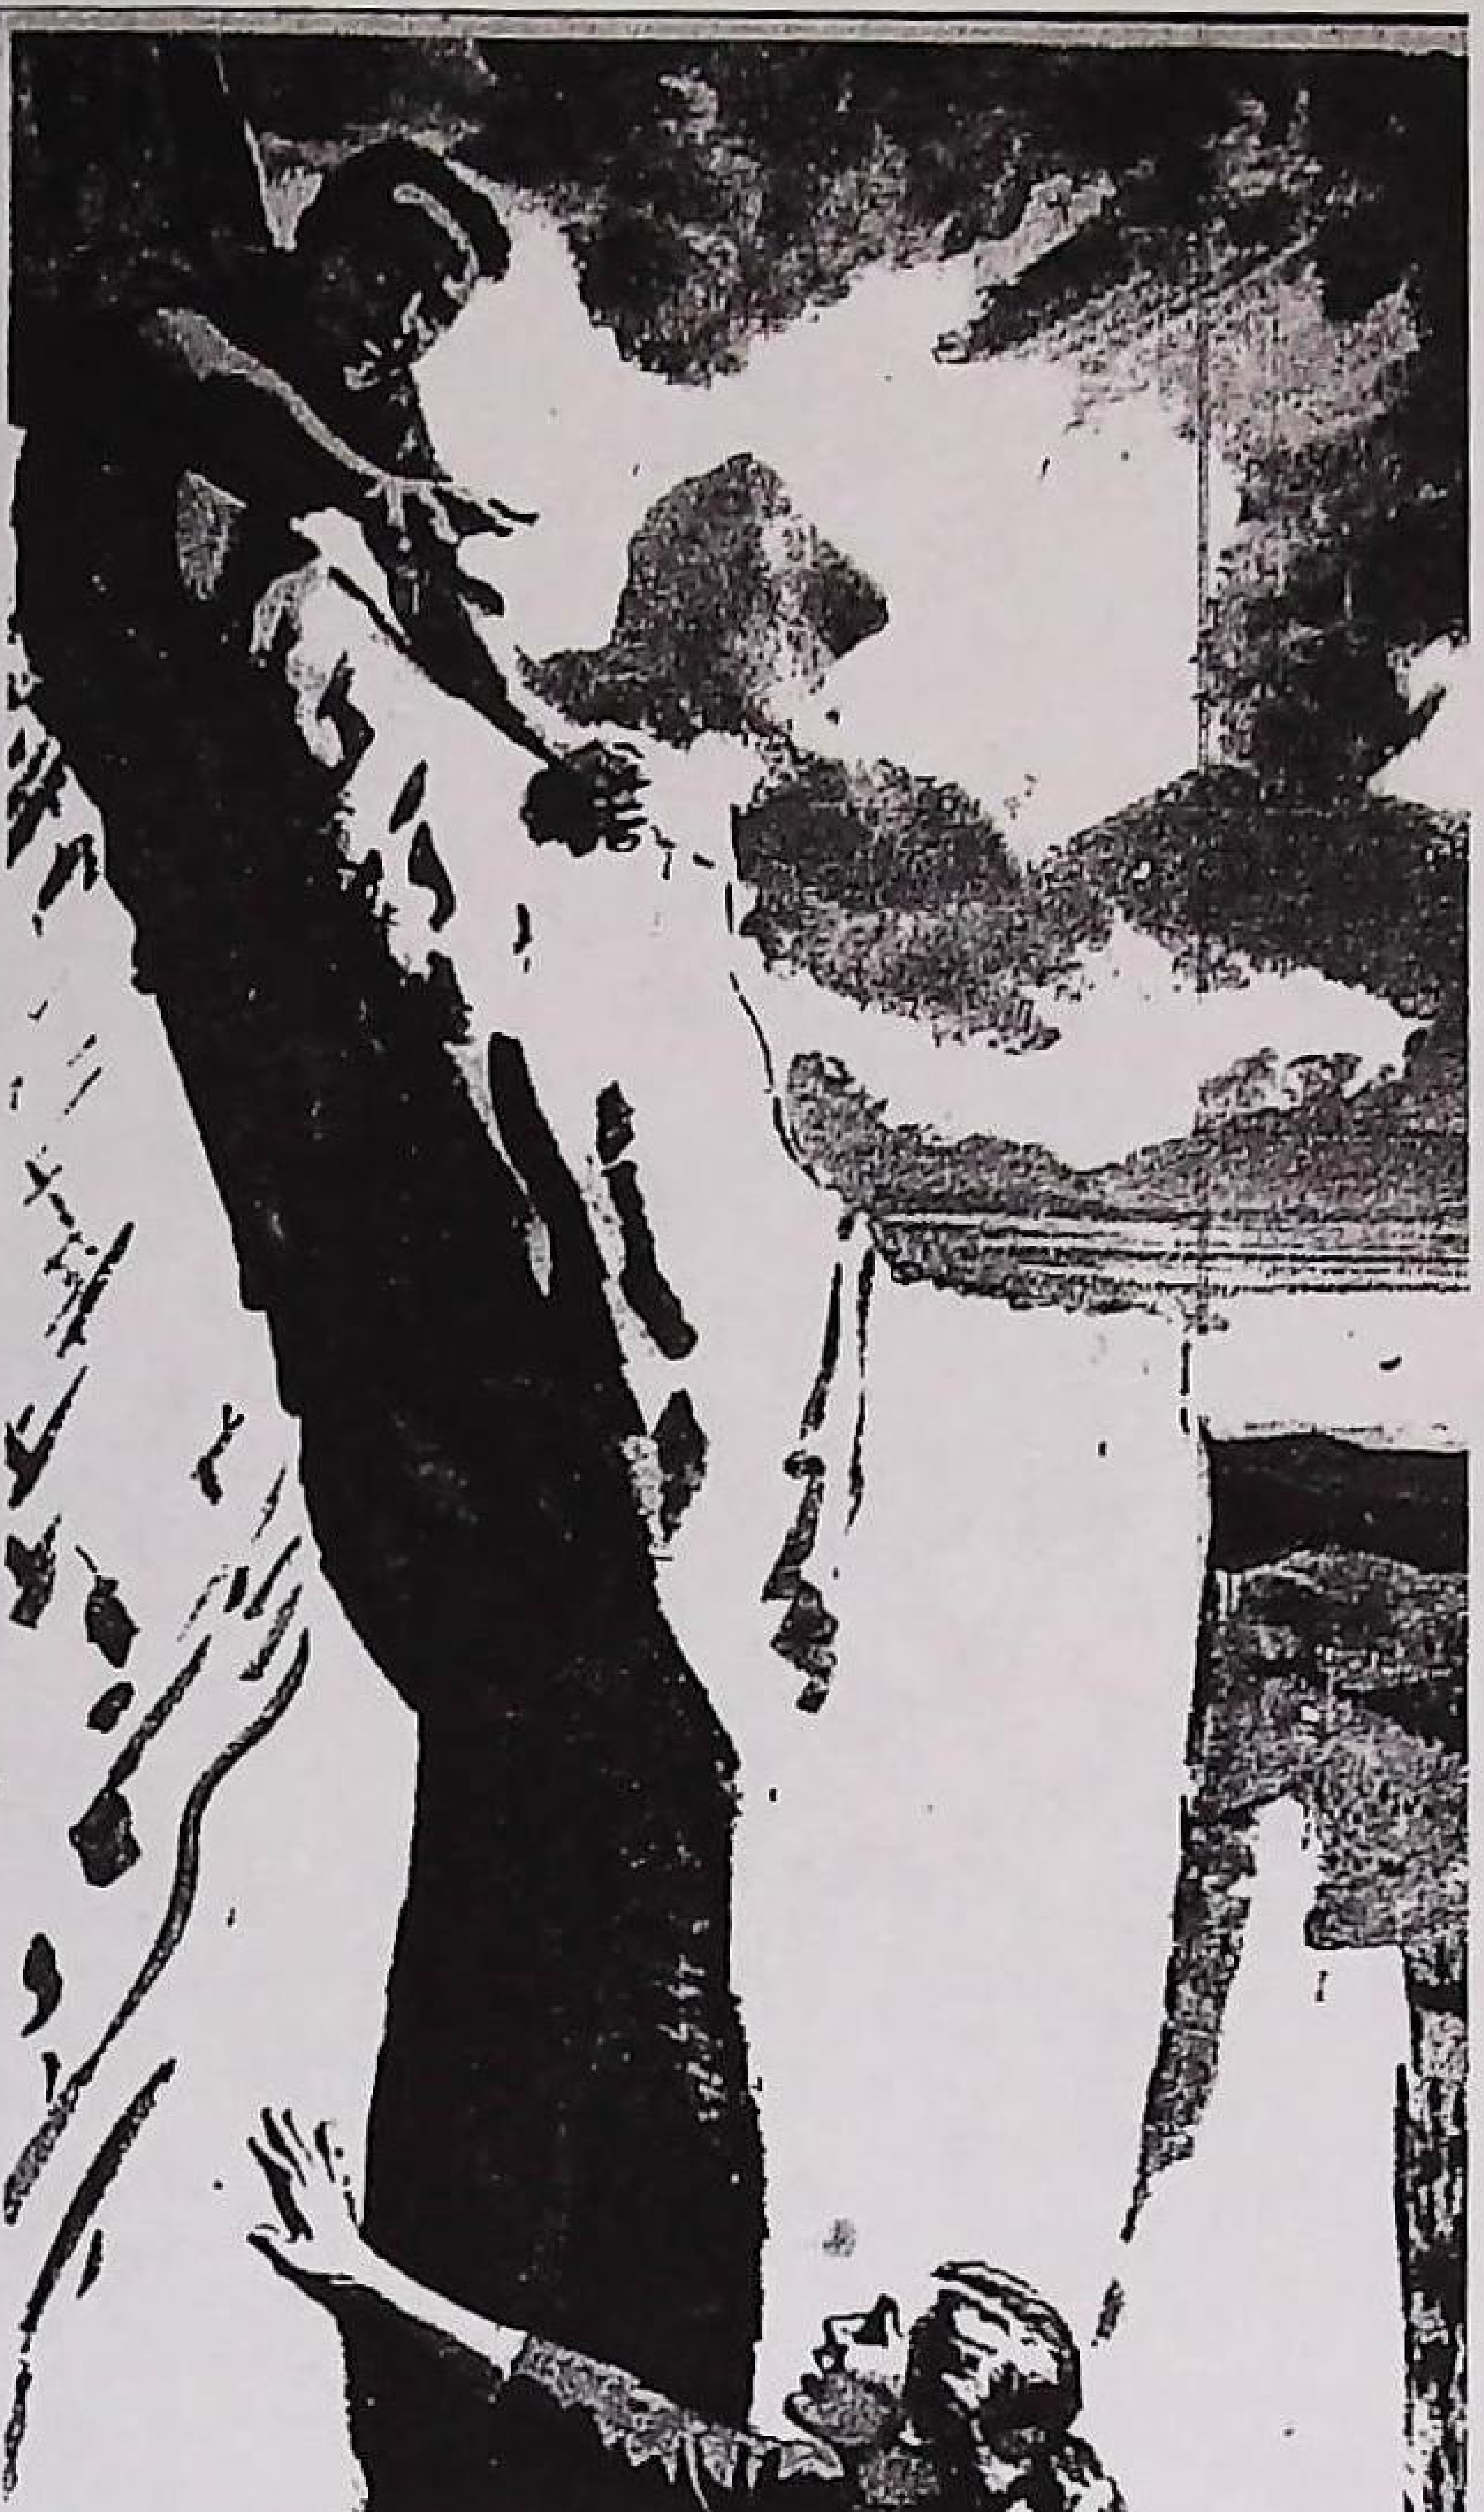
We traveled four days on the river in the general direction of Devil's Mountain. Then we came to a huge gorge, a mile long, with sheer rock walls about 1,000 feet high. At the head of the gorge a waterfall spilled down over the wall, and perhaps it served as a mark of identification. At any rate, the Indians informed me that we had reached the home of many "eyes." All I had to do was look for them.

I made a brief inspection of what I believe will be the biggest diamond field ever discovered in the history of South America. But I had no equipment with me, so I left with the Indians and returned to my grass hut. There I set about making plans.

One man alone could not tap that vast diamond store. I knew that, despite the fact that I found $7,000 worth of diamonds in a single pool two years ago, and during another three months' period I collected $30,000 worth. That time I went to Caracas and lived in misery until I had spent every cent. Then I returned to the jungle and happiness.

Though I live in a Shangri-la of mineral wealth, I need money, men and machines—and most of all I need a helicopter for easy transportation. All of my prospecting, heretofore, has been of the lone-wolf type. Now I've already invited a band of scientific experts to visit the "home of the many eyes" and perhaps to venture up on top of Devil's Mountain.

Maybe they'll help me prove that my lost world is the greatest "get-rich-quick" spot on earth. ◄◄



"I found an opening that led to a chimney-like cave and, after wriggling up, I called instructions to my wife, Vilma, on the ledge below, to follow me."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, April 19, the 110th day of 2004. There are 256 days left in the year.

On this date:

In 1775, the American Revolutionary War began with the battles of Lexington and Concord.

In 1782, the Netherlands recognized American independence.

In 1893, the Oscar Wilde play "A Woman of No Importance" opened at the Haymarket Theatre in London.

In 1933, the United States went off the gold standard.

In 1943, during World War II, tens of thousands of Jews living in the Warsaw Ghetto began a valiant but futile battle against Nazi forces.

In 1945, the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "Carousel" opened on Broadway.

In 1951, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, relieved of his Far East command by President Truman, bid farewell to Congress, quoting a line from a ballad: "Old soldiers never die; they just fade away."

In 1982, astronauts Sally K. Ride and Guion S. Bluford Jr. became the first woman and first African-American to be tapped for U.S. space missions.

In 1989, 47 sailors were killed when a gun turret exploded aboard the USS Iowa.

In 1993, the 51-day siege at the Branch Davidian compound near Waco, Texas, ended as fire destroyed the structure after federal agents began smashing their way in; dozens of people, including David Koresh, were killed.

Dear Gary,

Have you heard of a new movie called "A Series of Unfortunate Events'? That rather describes a large part of the past 6 months or so and accounts for my being a lousy correspondent. Have had trouble making editor deadlines and personal mail has suffered as a consequence. sigh

But as you have noted already, I have kept an eye out for stuff that I thought would interest you. By chance, I got 2 copies of the View Master article; perhaps you have a VM correspondent who would like the spare. The big cat stuff is from a local paper which son Steve in Australia gets. Hasn't been much recently about the cat. Maybe now that it is summer there, it is holing up except at night when it is cooler for hunting.

As for 'Trader Hornee' . . . oh my. When I saw you mention that movie, I was almost 100% sure it was porn. After a bit of chasing about on the web, I found the enclosure. I think you can cross it off your list as, perhaps, some of your other correspondents have already told you. As for the real Trader Horn movie, there were two: 1931 with Harry Carey and 1973 with Rod Taylor. According to Leonard Maltin's 2001 Movie and Video Guide, the 1931 film is on VHS but the remake is not. Your library should have a more recent Maltin [or some other video guide] with more up to date info. By now it might be on DVD. The library might also help on the Dyott chase.

Now, backing up to your 1 Aug letter which has been gathering dust . . . I knew Sanderson, tho not all that well. I think I may still have a small file of our correspondence. He wrote the introduction to my S.F. UFO anthology back in l968 or thereabouts. He also visited me once in Bloomfield, passing thru Ct on his way home from some sort of a field trip. I have -- somewhere -- a photo or two of him in my recliner chair. I never got to his NJ place. I think he was also at Moseley's first UFO conference in NYawk so my coverage of it might mention him. I've his ufo/BF/Fortean books and one or two of his earlier animal books. Have you ever written to the old SITU address in recent years? I've wondered from time to time if that p.o. box # was still good. I do have all the newsletters SITU generated. Just a question of digging them out.

I hope you have been ok given the bad weather I see reported back there. You mentioned scrounging for free wood to save on oil. Hope you got a good supply laid in. The winter here has been mild and basically dry so far. The ski areas are hurting. I got my woodshed filled by early fall. We have a woodstove tho there is an oil burner as backup or for when we have friends visiting who aren't used to waiting for a woodstove to produce heat. My woodshed holds about 7 cords and I've cut and split every bit of it. That's the good exercise for me now that I can't hike 4-5 miles anymore. Two is about the most I can do comfortably.

I do hope you are getting some money for these TV shows you let tape you. You really should open any discussion by noting that this is a sideline for you and you feel strongly that you should be paid for your time and efforts. Get it down in writing on their letterhead that they are going to pay you a flat fee of $--- for your consultant work.

Passenger pigeons. I'm no help on that. I grew up being told they were extinct and never saw anything to the contrary for many decades so never developed an interest in the topic. I wish you luck.

28 DECEMBER 2004

I recall hearing about 'Headless Valley' -- maybe there was a ref or two in some fortean pubs but I know nothing of value and doubt that, unless it is in some newsletters or such about which I have forgotten, I have any material on it. Hmmm, I wonder if the B.C. Crypto group has anything on it? Or John Green?

The radio news has been full of the Tsunami tragedy in the Indian Ocean. The forteanesque corner of my mind wonders if any truly weird and unknown life forms got tossed up on the beach. I fear that if so, no one will ever discover them until all that is left is an unrecognizable mess. I used to prowl the beach after a storm at Ocean city MD where we vacationed in the late 30's. Don't recall anything weird being tossed up aside from various forms of seaweed and shells. But I was young then . . .

Like every other reader of TRUE magazine, I know a bit about Col. Faucet but not all that much. Never pursued that topic. Damn shame there's no master file of TRUE and AGREES . . . lots of interesting stuff in those two.

Now [and it is time I closed this up with a promise I'll try to do better in 2005] In the basement storage room are still unreviewed boxes of clips [mostly ufo] and all sorts of forteanesque stuff. As we've said before, we need to find a responsible institution that will take and catalog all this material. In the meantime . . .

And now I need to go back to my article for UFO mag. It's on the crashed saucer retrieval mythology and may well wind up as a 2-parter as did my earlier report on last summer's MUFON Symposium. Pay is minimal but it is good to have an outlet where I can play Devil's Advocate to uncritical believers.

I hope you had a good Christmas -- we had a small one. just Margo, me , son David and his wife Angela plus Titan, our 6 months-old malamute pup watching from the deck.

And may 2005 be a good year for us all . . . with certain exceptions.

Cheers,

George

S. HELD STRONGER HAN SOVIET UNION

ıperior Philosophy of Life' fere Cited by Dr. Sockman at Service at N. Y. U.

The United States is "vastly onger" than the Soviet Union ;ause of a superior philosophy life, the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. :kman declared yesterday.

Dr. Sockman, minister of Christ urch, Methodist, is chaplain of w York University. He spoke ?,000 seniors at the 117th baccaureate service in the chapel in uld Memorial Library on the ll of Fame Campus at 181st ·eet and University Avenue.

Dr. Sockman declared that Rus- was "too poor" to resort to r and that therefore the danger communism was from infiltran rather than invasion.

"The defense against infiltration ike the preservation of a garden ainst weeds," he said. "You can- : keep weeds out by building ;her fences.

"The only way to keep a garden to cultivate it. Similarly, the ly way to keep America a free d democratic society is to culti- te the ideals and institutions of r Christian civilization."

Urges Community Spirit

Dr. Sockman urged a commun- spirit without the "dwarfing essure of numbers" as the best 'ense against communism.

Declaring that "atomistic living" ght be as dangerous as atomic mbing, the minister continued: "When we live together in usses like loose grains of sand a sand pile we weaken our ıole social structure. Without ıre cement of social responsibil- our selfish individualism will ove our undoing.

"While we are not called to be r brothers' keepers we are called God to be our brothers' brothers. e individual must not only be :de to see that he counts, but must be shown where he can unt."

'NBC Arena Theatre' to Do 'Summer Formal,' Musical Written for Video, on Sunday

The "NBC Arena Theatre," which made its bow a few weeks ago with the staging of "Romeo and Juliet," will offer for its second presentation a musical show written especially for television. The program, titled "Summer Formal," with original music and lyrics written by Marty Donovan and Gerry Kenyon, will be carried by the National Broadcasting Company television network next Sunday, from 9 to 10 P. M.

Making use of the arena or center stage technique, the theme of the revue type show will be based on magazines, including Vogue, Seventeen, Harper's Bazaar, Variety and Field and Stream. To uphold the theme of "Summer Formal," even the camera men and engineers—who, incidentally, will be seen by the audience—will be attired in summer formal clothes.

The cast is composed of newcomers to television, including George Conely, Kay Coulter, Jordan Bentley, Jacqueline Dodge, John Fernandey, Mary Ann Drake, John Intorcia, Ina Kurland, Don Liberto, Nancy Newton, Leigh Roberts, Boris Runanin, Helen Ryan and Bob Kennedy.

Premiere of "Mama's Bank Account," an adaptation of Kathryn Forbes' book in which Peggy Wood will play the title role, has been delayed by CBS television until Friday, July 1, at 8 P. M. Originally it was scheduled to start next Friday. General Foods, in behalf of Maxwell House coffee, begins sponsorship of the program early in August.

Television viewers who are irritated by changing picture quality every time studio cameras are switched may be relieved of their problem through a new development called the "video analyzer." The unit is designed to match and balance the television cameras, the source of the long standing problem, thus assuring images of higher quality and uniform reception. The "video analyzer" fits on the lens of the television camera. It was developed by Dr. Frank Back and Frank Marx, vice president in charge of engineering for the American Broadcasting Company.

A new program series, dramatizations of medical case histories, will make its debut today over WNBC from 9:45 to 10 A. M. under the title of "Inside the Doctor's Office." The program features Dr. Frederick Damrau and is scheduled to be heard Mondays through Fridays. "Inside the Doctor's Office" will result in the rescheduling of Ivan Sanderson's "Natural Treasures" at 11 A. M., while Norman Brokenshire's program moves ahead to 9:15 A. M.

For the purpose of improving its picture signal, the effective radiated power of WCBS-TV will be doubled after June 20, according to J. L. Van Volkenburg, vice president and director of television operations for the Columbia Broadcasting System. New equipment is being installed atop the Chrysler Building tower where Columbia's transmitting antenna is located.

Further discussion of theatre ticket scalping will be aired tonight by Richard Maney, publicizer of Broadway shows, when he appears on the DuMont television network at 8 o'clock.

CBS Opens Deal to Bring 'Fibber McGee and Molly' Program to Network

The Columbia Broadcasting System, which a week ago announced the acquisition of the Jack Benny program, has initiated negotiations to obtain the "Fibber McGee and Molly" show, another mainstay on the NBC schedule, it was learned yesterday.

No details of the proposed deal were forthcoming but it was understood that NBC had decided not to enter any competitive bid to retain the program. NBC previously had disclosed that it would not make capital gains offers to its artists until the Treasury Department had approved such transactions in general. Both CBS and NBC declined to comment on the latest turn in the battle o fthe two major networks for top comedy programs.

Jim and Marian Jordan, who play the title roles on "Fibber McGee and Molly," formally incorporated their program some years ago. Their attorney in Los Angeles is Lloyd Wright, who acted as Mr. Benny's counsel in negotiating with CBS. It was reported further that the Music Corporation of America, which was a participant in the Benny transaction, also was involved in the "Fibber McGee and Molly" negotiations.

Jim Hawthorne, who for some time has enjoyed a following on the West Coast with his bizarre recordings, will bring his humor and disks to the national network of the ABC chain, starting today. He will be heard at 11:30 P. M. Saturdays.

According to the research department of NBC, there are now 718,000 TV sets installed through the United States. As of Nov. 1, the New York area led with a total of 320,000. The runners-up came in the following order: Philadelphia, 80,000; Los Angeles, 42,400; Chicago, 41,000; Boston, 30,400; Baltimore, 26,000; Washington, 21,200; Detroit, 20,500; Cleveland, 16,600; St. Louis, 13,000; Schenectady, 10,600; New Haven, 9,900; Milwaukee, 9,300; Cincinnati, 8,000; Richmond, 4,000, and Atlanta, 3,800.

"Adventures 'in Science," the CBS series devoted to discussions of current developments in science, will resume on the Columbia network at 3:15 P. M. next Saturday, Dec. 11. It was of fthe air during the football season. Watson Davis will continue to be the program's moderator, his first guest being Delos Wilson Rentzel, chief of the Civil eronautics Administration.

The Lux Radio Theatre was the most popular evening program with radio listeners in the New York metropolitan area, according to the latest survey by Pulse, Inc. Next in line were Walter Winchell, Jack Benny, Fibber McGee and Molly, Bob Hope, My Friend Irma, Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts, Red Skelton, Music Hall and Inner Sanctum.

"Who Said That?," the NBC quiz show on which contestants must identify quotations from recent statements of prominent persons, will have its television debut at 10 P. M. next Thursday over WNBT. The guests will be Elsa Maxwell, George Allen, President Truman's unofficial adviser; H. V. Kaltenborn and John Cameron Swayze.

"County Fair," Win Elliott's audience-participation show, will join the ranks of evening attractions on CBS, beginning Jan. 5. Now heard on Saturday afternoons, it will move into the 9 P. M. spot on Wednesdays.

WPIX Revising Video Schedule Tomorrow—Sanderson to Offer Program on WNBC

Station WPIX announces a complete revision of its television schedule, effective tomorrow. The changes were said by Robert L. Coe, manager of the video outlet, to be designed to meet the fall and winter looking and listening habits of television audiences. Mr. Coe added, however, that the revised schedule also would result in "some reduction in station personnel."

The major programs affected by the schedule shake-up are as follows: the series of Alexander Korda pictures, which have been offered on Sunday nights, will be presented at 8 P. M. Fridays; the Gloria Swanson program will shift from Wednesday afternoons to 8 P. M. Thursdays; the Frank Paris puppet program will be seen at 5 05 P. M., Monday through Wednesday, instead of on Saturdays.

Ivan Sanderson, naturalist and explorer, will start a daily program of his own next week. He will be heard at 9:15 A. M., Mondays through Fridays over WNBC, his offering being a replacement for the John McCaffrey item known as "Room 416." Mr. Sanderson plans to emphasize "the unusual and baffling aspects of the world of nature," according to WNBC.

"Take It or Leave It" will be tested for its television potentialities on Sunday, Sept. 26, when the program originates from New York. For the one time the quiz show will be presented on both the radio and television facilities of NBC.

WNYC will devote the hours between 1:30 and 4 P. M. on Monday to coverage of the Salute to the New York Press at the Golden Anniversary Exposition in Grand Central Palace. The program will be introduced by Mayor O'Dwyer and Grover Whalen and participants will include representatives from fourteen of New York's newspapers, including Meyer Berger and Alice Pentlarge of THE NEW YORK TIMES; Frederick Gutheim of The New York Herald Tribune; Samuel Grafton of The Post and Bronx Home News; Lowell Limpus of The Daily News; Harry Hershfield of The Daily Mirror and Murray Davis of The World Telegram.

WHN, which next Wednesday changes its call letters to WMGM, will broadcast the play-by-play descriptions of the twelve official games of the New York Giants football team, with Connie Desmond and Bert Lee at the microphones. The first game on the regular schedule will be the meeting with the Boston Yankees at Boston, on Thursday, Sept. 23. WJZ-TV will carry the game for the television audience.

The annual "Two Hours of Stars" program broadcast on Thanksgiving and Christmas afternoons from 4 to 6 o'clock, this year will be heard on the National Broadcasting Company network. In previous years it was broadcast over CBS. Already signed for the Thanksgiving Day show are Jack Benny, Red Skelton, Jimmy Durante and Garry Moore. Don Ameche will be master of ceremonies for both programs.

TUESDAY

QUEEN ELIZABETH HERE 14 DAYS LATE

Passengers, Many Aboard 19 Days, Praise Cunard Line for 'Royal Treatment'

The Queen Elizabeth of the Cunard White Star Line docked at 10:05 o'clock last night at Pier 90, North River, fourteen days behind schedule as a result of weather and the recent dock strike here. She had 2,209 passengers, more than half of whom had been aboard the giant vessel for the last nineteen days.

Scheduled to sail from Southampton on Nov. 17, the ship was held at her berth for ten days by the Atlantic Coast longshoremen's strike. Then a dense fog settled around her and her voyage was postponed for an additional four days. Rough seas added a half-day to her tardiness. The crossing was made in five days, fourteen hours and forty-four minutes from Southampton.

During the long stay in Southampton the passengers used the ship as a free hotel, receiving all meals and other services at the company's expense—estimated to have amounted to $20,000 a day.

The royal treatment they received was the foremost topic of conversation among the debarking guests.

The Rev. Henry H. Crane, pastor of the Central Methodist Church, Detroit, intimated that nothing could be finer than to be stranded on a Cunard liner.

Chester Morris, motion picture actor, called the Cunard Line "magnificent."

Mrs. Josephine Greer of 20 West Seventy-sixth Street related that the company had gone far beyond its obligations in taking care of several hundred passengers who waited in Paris to board the liner at Cherbourg.

Seamen on the liner got a rousing welcome from New York seamen and longshoremen for refusing to sail the Elizabeth out of Southampton to Halifax when other ships were being diverted there.

Waiting on the pier were nearly 100 men headed by Joseph Ryan, president of the International Longshoremen's Association. They held up placards expressing thanks for the assistance from the other side of the Atlantic. They read: "The Job Is Done, Thanks to You, ILA"; "Your Hands Across the Sea Helped," "Thanks to the Blokes of Britain from the Guys in New York," "Thank You, Brothers of the Queen," and "Three

Program Due Sunday to Give Stage News of Interest to Professionals and Public

News of the theatre for both professionals and the general public will be dovetailed to form "Show Business," which WNEW will introduce Sunday night at 10:15 o'clock. The quarter-hour program will bear no relationship to the show of the same name which the station puts on weekdays at noon.

On the new weekly show, professionals will be appraised of casting information and the arrivals here of producers and directors, including the details of where they can be reached. For the listener, there will be a department on bargains in theatre tickets and news of experimental and "little theatre" productions around town. Other news incidental to show business also will be included in the program, over which Leo Shull will preside.

Ivan Sanderson, zoologist and explorer, will open a weekly series on natural history tomorrow at 6 P. M. over television station WNBT under the title of "Natural Treasures." As an example of what can be expected during the half-hour series, the first program will study the Mendelian and Darwinian theories, as applied to several breeds of pigeons which Mr. Sanderson will show and explain to his viewers.

The United Nations Singers, a new choral group composed of forty United Nations staff members from twelve countries, will make their public debut on Sunday night, Dec. 26, at 6:30 over CBS television. The half-hour program will feature Christmas carols in four languages—English, French, Spanish and Russian.

The Television Broadcasters Association will hold its one-day television clinic tomorrow at the Waldorf-Astoria. Wayne Coye, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, will be the featured speaker at the luncheon session. Other speakers will discuss problems pertinent to law, reception, station management, selling and program development.

The town of Greenwich, Conn., now has a frequency modulation station of its own, WGCH-FM having opened over the week-end with a daily program running from 1 to 9 P. M. The outlet is owned by Walter S. Lemmon, who also is president of WRUL, the international shortwave radio station.

Mr. Lemmon also has an application pending for a standard station in Greenwich, operating on a frequency of 1490 kilocycles with a power of 250 watts. A hearing is scheduled to be held in Greenwich on Thursday by the Federal Communications Commission in connection with the bid. The 1490 channel also is being sought by the Fairfield County Broadcasting Company of Norwalk, Conn.

A total of 688 advertisers offered commercial programs or spot announcements over the country's television stations during the month of October, according to a survey conducted by the magazine Television. The figures represent a jump of 495 per cent over October, 1947, when 139 advertisers were using the medium.

Ralph Edwards has set Saturday as the deadline for receiving entries to his "Papa and Mama Hush" contest on NBC's "Truth or Consequences," as a means of cooperating with the postoffice by helping to ease the mail load during the Christmas season.

New Jersey's newest and most powerful radio station, WVNJ, Newark, goes on the air at noon today, having received its license late yesterday. The station has 5,000 watts of power at 620 on the dial and its regular broadcasting day will start at 6 A. M. and continue until 1 A. M., the following morning.

Biggest role of television is family entertainment in U.S. homes. Here Nick Mercaldi, White Plains, N. Y., tunes his set before semicircle of family, guests.

TELEVISION GOES TO TOWN

In its second year, it has already altered the pattern of U. S. home-life

BY DAN O. GORDON

A RADIO BEAM FLASHES through the air and the prosaic living room chair takes on all the hectic glamor of a championship ringside seat, the coveted first-nighter's place at the theater or the participant's view of history in the making. Such is the magic of television.

Exactly where television is going, and how soon it will get there, nobody yet seems to know. But that it is definitely on its way and that 1948 will be by far its biggest year, there is no doubt.

Television today is pretty much confined to parlor entertainment—sports, drama, movies, kids' shows—and perhaps that will always be its greatest function. Young as it is—it reached the public only last year—television already is profoundly influencing the American people. The 8,000 receiving sets in the country at the end of 1946 grew to 170,000 in 12 months, and by next January 1 it is estimated that 750,000 will be in service.

At the beginning of 1948, only 18 television broadcasting stations were in operation, but 56 more had construction permits and 80 additional applications were pending. New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington are linked by coaxial cable. Soon Boston and Schenectady, N. Y., will be added. Separate linking of cities elsewhere in the East and Midwest will increase as an ambitious program of coaxial construction is realized. In perhaps five years coast-to-coast networks will be a casually accepted reality.

The most telling effects of television have already been felt in the American home, however. To determine precisely what happens when television invades the U. S. home, PARADE recently went to White Plains, N. Y., to visit the Nicholas Mercaldi family. There PARADE met Mercaldi, 34, a full-faced, pleasant host, head of a newspaper distributing organization; his wife, Louise, and three daughters, Marie, 12, Judy, 9, and Deborah, 10 months.

Television's most pronounced effect, the Mercaldis find, is on their children. "They just don't have enough time to watch the screen and do all the other things they used to do," explains Papa Mercaldi.

One effect of set has been to increase number of visitors to Mercaldi home. Family itself goes out less often.

But the influence of television, Mercaldi is quick to affirm, is generally beneficial. "This is especially true from an educational standpoint," he points out. "Both Marie and Judy watch travelogues whenever they are on, and they keep my wife and me busy answering questions about places they have just seen. And their schoolwork hasn't suffered. Their marks are even better."

Youngsters Bring Their Friends

Along with travelogues, the children are keen for movies and kids' programs. Generally they bring home from one to a half-dozen playmates.

To a slightly less degree, television has altered the habits of the elder Mercaldis. They still go to the movies and theater, but, declares Nick, "It's got to be something very good to get us out." A red-hot sports fan, Nick now seldom goes to a fight, insists that he prefers to see it by television.

While they go out less frequently now, the Mercaldis find they entertain at home far more than in pre-television days. When PARADE called, nine guests were in their living room.

The set operates for two or three hours almost every night, and an hour or so in the afternoon with a somewhat heavier schedule on week ends. "It hasn't added anything to our operating budget," says Nick. "Even the bill for electricity is just about the same."

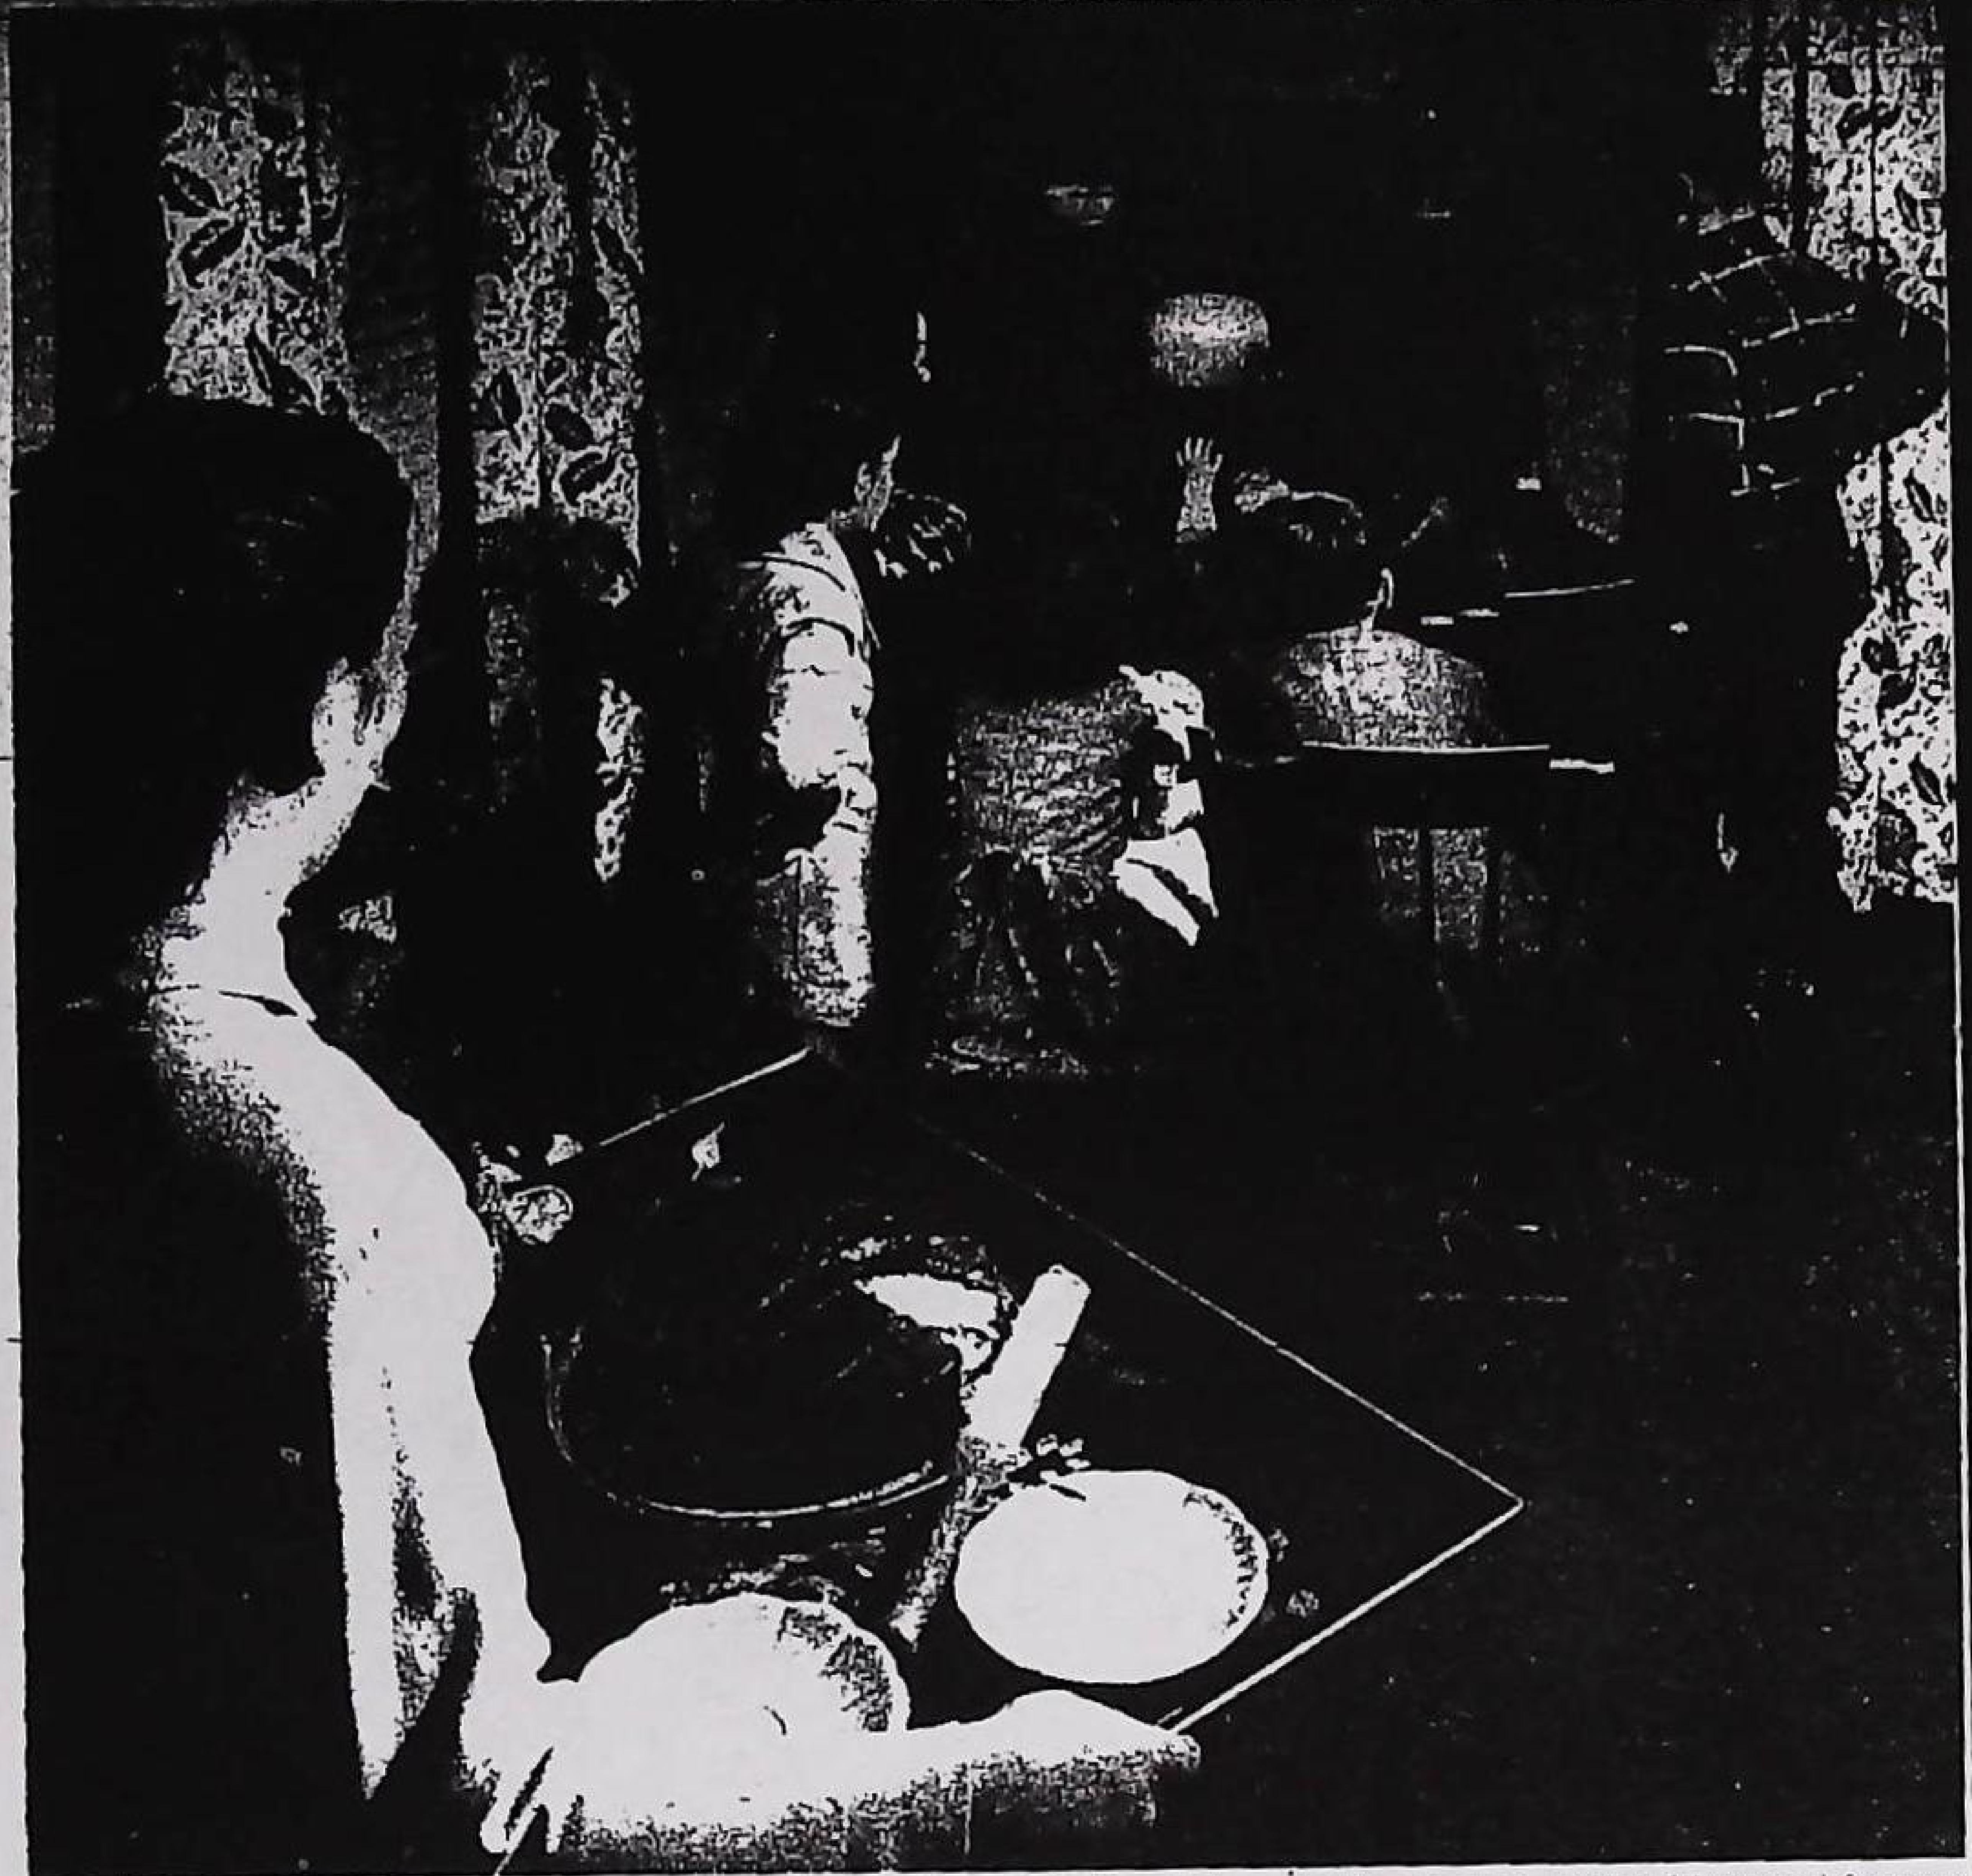
Television set has opened new vistas of entertainment for family. This is Judy, 9.

Mrs. Mercaldi's sister-in-law intently follows plot of televised drama to its climax.

Neighborhood youngsters warm to excitement of a televised western movie.

Animated cartoons bring smiles to faces of grown-ups and children in living room.

Tiny guest Roberta Price gets a chance to turn the dials when the Mercaldi set is idle.



Absorbed youngsters fail to take eyes from screen even when Mrs. Mercaldi brings on cake with chocolate frosting. Children take television dates seriously, are much attracted by travel features, children's dramatic programs and by televised motion pictures.

Experts scout the future of television in

WHAT MAY THE AMERICAN PUBLIC reasonably expect from television in the near future? For the answer, PARADE approached Edgar Bergen, radio star and president, Academy of Television Arts and Sciences; Leonard Hole, associate director, CBS Television; and Edward Stasheff, video program director, WNYE, New York. Their views follow.

TELEVISION AND U. S. ENTERTAINMENT

BERGEN

MOTION PICTURE recordings will be the major factor in the development of television and will be an important part of the programs of every television station of the future.

Through the use of film, operating costs will be materially lessened because the fees of the nationwide coaxial cables, bringing in live shows, will not be necessary.

The film set-up will operate somewhat as recordings do now on radio. Sponsors will insist on them to insure uniformity and accuracy for the presentation of their products. Each station in a chain broadcasting identical program will be equipped with its own reels of film.

Television fans will be best served by many independent stations throughout the nation rather than great networks. In this way, more talent will be developed and television will be to the entertainment world of the future what vaudeville-trained performers are to the motion picture and radio world of today.

As soon as possible, I hope to have my own program converted to television, because I believe that even top-notch radio programs cannot compete with the visual appeal of television. To this end, I am working on new puppets designed for the medium of television.

TELEVISION AND ITS EXPANSION, 1948

HOLE

TELEVISION progress in the United States in 1948 will continue toward a goal of broad networks.

Regional hook-ups are developing along the Eastern seaboard, out of Chicago and on the West Coast. Coast-to-coast spans will come later.

It seems safe to imagine that with various technical improvements already on the market, or about to be released from laboratories, there will be considerable improvement in the broadcast image. More and more radio and electronics manufacturers will convert to television production, further lowering the cost of sets.

The quality of television programming will doubtless increase with the expansion of connecting facilities between cities. This will give great impetus to formation of national networks

The women's time for monopolizing set comes when cookery program is flashed on screen. Mrs. Mercaldi makes notes about dish while neighborhood guests observe demonstration.

Adults still hover around screen after all children except Marie (right) have gone to bed. Mercaldis (standing, rear) enjoy the frequent guests which set has brought them.

programs, technology . . .

Furthermore, although television has managed with enormous ingenuity to grow without benefit of live music since 1945, any arrangement which permits the use of music will tend to improve the entertainment value, not alone of individual programs, but of the over-all schedules of video stations.

TELEVISION AND AMERICAN EDUCATION

STASHEFF

THAT TELEVISION is sure to have a powerful influence on American thought and culture is obvious to anyone who has studied, for example, the influence of films on feminine fashions, or the effect of radio on American taste in music. Any medium of mass communication becomes almost automatically an instrument of mass education.

Formal education will come to the home, and perhaps more significant will be the effect on education of having its materials presented to the taxpayer in his living room. The school systems of five large cities already have broadcast on television, not so much for classroom viewers as for the general public. If the material is presented in sufficiently entertaining fashion, the impact of television will make such "teaching" the most effective the world has known.

In the field of political life, interest in sheer subject matter will hold the viewer to the "remote pick-up" of a nominating convention or a campaign speech. And the candidate of tomorrow will need both a good microphone voice and a "telegenic" personality to win his public. No ghost writer can turn out a winning smile. In international politics, television can be a tremendous power for mutual understanding and can readily bridge gaps between nations. In culture and world affairs, we can only hope that television will serve on the side of the angels. THE END.

Too Young for Guessing Games

Any day is sun-day if baby beams over breakfast, lunch and supper. And, thousands of tots do, over and over again, when . . .

Mothers give up guessing and get Gerber's! You see, babies like good-tasting Gerber's better . . . from Cereals (usually their first solid food after milk) right through Strained and Junior Foods.

And the flavor favorites more babies go for are approved by so many doctors, too. That's true of everything from Gerber's tempting, vitamin-full vegetables to delicious, nutritious desserts.

Added note of cheer: Gerber's Junior Foods come in the same size container at the same price as the Strained. And, you don't have to guess how much that lessens leftovers, cuts down grocery bills.

Free Samples of 3 cereals. Write to Gerber's, Dept. 643-8, Fremont, Mich.

Babies are our business... our only business!

THIS WEEK'S COVER

This week's Norman Rockwell cover depicts Ebbets Field, the home of the Brooklyn Dodgers. Here, the Dodgers are trailing the Pittsburgh Pirates 1–0 in the sixth inning. If the arbiters—left to right, Larry Goetz, Beans Reardon and Lou Jorda—call the game because of rain, the score will stand as is, and Pittsburgh will win. This irks the Brooklynites, who dislike having other teams win. In the picture, Clyde Sukeforth, a Brooklyn coach, could well be saying, "You may be all wet, but it ain't raining a drop!" The huddled Pittsburgher—Bill Meyer, Pirate manager—is doubtless retorting, "For the love of Abner Doubleday, how can we play ball in this cloudburst?"

Radio's Most Embarrassing Moments

By J. BRYAN, III

> Were you listening in when a vocalist was introduced as "a charming young sinner"? Or when a commentator described "the Battle of the Bulgian Belch"? Here are radio's most hilarious slips of the tongue.

THEY still talk about it at WMCA, although it happened twenty-odd years ago. They say the program was fouled up like a Chinese fire drill and as hideous as Halloween in a madhouse. This name band, they say, was featuring a crooner, a guy with a voice like warm maple sirup. Well, that night, just as he began to pour, his false teeth dropped out, and the maple sirup turned to pickle juice. The trombonist, nervous anyhow, blew a clinker that rattled teacups in China. That touched off the rest of the boys; the notes they hit sounded like a pack of taxi drivers in a traffic jam. The leader backed away in fright and fell over a chair. The announcer bleated, "I'll be damned!" right into his mike. The assistant announcer just stood there with his face hanging out. And the whole studio was going nuts, but fast, when the sound man gathered his wits and—"Voom! We cut to the piano."

If a newspaper accidentally refers to a local hero as "a bottle-scarred veteran," it can change "bottle" to "battle" in the next edition, and little harm is done. If Royal, the wonder horse, gets sore at Tex Podner and prints a pair of horseshoes on his pants, they throw away that part of the film, and the fans don't know the difference. But radio and television have no such protection. The burp, the brodie and the unbuttoned button are irretrievable; and once a train of disaster starts rolling, as on that night at WMCA, the studio can derail it only by blanking out the rest of the program and switching to a standby pianist.

Real emergencies are rare, but every studio can produce a list of minor mishaps as long as a soap commercial. Almost anything can cause one. The sound-effects man rings a church bell instead of opening a creaky door. The script writer—as once on The Lone Ranger program—feeds in a line like "Hark! I hear a white horse coming!" Westbrook Van Voorhees, running a Mutual show for a cigarette company, coughs in front of the microphone and apologizes, "Excuse me! I've been smoking too much." A WRNB announcer shocks his audience with a shameless impropriety, "For a happy vacation, never swim or bathe alone!"

Those are the commonest mistakes—plain slips of the tongue. Listen to Jerry Lawrence: "You will know that the King and Queen have arrived when you hear the twenty-one-sun galoot."

And Arthur van Horne: "WOR presents the newted nose analyst ——"

And Mel Allen: "It's smipe-poking time!"

And Bruce Elliott: "The urge is needent!"

And Frank Knight: "The weather report: tomorrow rowdy, followed by clain." (At that, he made a better point than the announcer who prophesied, "Clear Sunday, followed by Monday late tonight.")

Even a thick-witted child could prattle the simple phrases that foiled these radio veterans, but the gremlins that live in microphones don't bother to twist a child's tongue. They're after big game—the crack announcers, the star actors, the deep-domed commentators—and the gremlins never miss. When they get a preview of a script and learn that a dignitary will be mentioned, they cover every syllable of his name with banana peels. Thus, Art Whiteside incredulously heard himself introduce "the Brown Quince of Norway," and Lowell Thomas, having referred to "Ambassador Bull Billett," turned with relief to a dispatch from New Delhi, India, with late news of "Sir Stifford Crapps." Harry von Zell paid respectful tribute to "our great President, Hoobert Heever," but Clyde Kittell topped him with an announcement that "His Holiness, Pipe Poess" would speak "from you to Vatican City."

Such double slips are collectors' items, and Kittell wore the Order of the Twisted Tonsil for years, until Dick Barr won it away from him with "Shores of skells were fired in a bittle batter." This may have been the same battle in which the Royal Air Force dropped, according to another announcer, "two- and four-ton blondes," or possibly it was what a third commentator called "the Battle of the Bulgian Belch."

If the gremlins won't respect even the Pope and ex-President Hoover, it's no surprise that they are downright frivolous with the companies that sponsor the programs. The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company seems to invite their special displeasure. Milton Cross once called its orchestra "the A. & G. Pipsies," and Ken Allyn informed his listeners that "all these values are waiting at your nearest A. & Poo Feed Store." The late Graham McNamee once plugged "Fire Chief Gasoloon," but Dick Willard—perhaps fresh from a traffic accident—swore by gas sold "at the sign of the Flying Red Hearse."

André Baruch advised his audience to "demand the breast in bed," but Fred Uttal offered an even more extraordinary prospect. "I am here," he stated stoutly, "to introduce Buppert's Rear!"

Hearing him, certain listeners were reminded of the announcer at WWJ who sang the virtues of "Hands' Hind Cream."

Grammarians have a term for such slips as these—metathesis, which means the transposition of letters, sounds or syllables. The word "curly" was "crulle" before metathesis, "third" was "thridde," and boisterous Sir John Falstaff was originally Fastolph. When the metathesis is accidental and ridiculous, it is known as a spoonerism, in tribute to its most famous practitioner, the Rev. William Archibald Spooner, late warden of New College, Oxford. Doctor Spooner seldom got any phrase quite straight. He once complained that a certain undergraduate had repeatedly "hissed my mystery lectures." Again, he whispered to a bewildered lady in the college chapel, "Mardon me, padam, but you are occupewing my pie." And on another Sunday he announced from his pulpit that the next hymn would be, "Kinquering Congs Their Titles Take."

LARRY KEIGHLEY

Even Milton Cross stumbled once in introducing "Atrosco Turanini—that is, Toscuro Artanini."

LARRY KEIGHLEY

Ben Grauer shows how he felt the day he signed off a show with "This is WJZilch, New York."

Doctor Spooner died in 1930, age eighty-six, but until the last microphone withers on its chromium stalk, his memory will be green—Paris green or the green of poison ivy. One radio actor, reaching for an imaginary bell pull and explaining that he would "give the bull a pill," came offstage with a hot-headed suggestion:

"I'm going to buy a derby," he said, "an old-fashioned one with a square crown, the kind I imagine Spooner wore. I'm going to have his initials stamped into the sweatband in gold, 'W. A. S.' I'll bring it to the studio every time I'm on the air, and if I so much as start to shuffle syllables, I'll kick that damn derby into the back row of the audience!"

Radio veterans all agree that when a spoonerism trips you—when, as they say, you "pull a fluff" (or a "fumpf" or a "beard")—you should pick yourself up and rush on as if nothing had happened. Chances are, few listeners will notice the slip. Ford Bond cites in evidence the time when he offered "a gold-edged hostess dish, absolutely free, as beautiful as it is useless," and the audience response was higher than when he made the offer correctly. Besides, the veterans say, if you go back and try to clean up the mess, you're likely to make it worse.

For instance, there was the CBS actor who was giving directions for setting a dinner table: "Place the sporks and foons on ——" Pause. "The porks and sfoons ——" Another pause. Deep breath. "I mean, of course, the sforks and poons." And so on, unto hysteria.

Ken Allyn once tried to announce that WRNL would sponsor a monster citizenship rally. "Sponster a monsor" was his first attempt, and "monster a sponsor" his second. When he finally straightened it out, he was so flushed with success that he forgot all about the rally and left his audience believing that WRNL was going to sponsor a monster.

Even Milton Cross, who usually seems to have gargled with vanilla extract and brushed his teeth with marshmallow whip, sounded as if his mouth were stuffed with peanut shells when he said that the new NBC Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of "Atrosco Turanini—that is, Toscuro Artunini ——" He wiped his forehead and read it syllable by syllable. "Ar-tu-ro Tos-ca-ni-ni."

Speaking of brushing one's teeth, Bob Hope tried to offer his audience a "fifty-tuft toothbrush," but abandoned the whole project after minutes of fumbling with foftytufths and tuftbrushes.

The toughest obstacle course in Ben Grauer's long experience was—read it aloud yourself!—"Six hundred Agfa-Ansco D-Six Sure-shot Cameras." He rehearsed it twenty times before he went on the air, and when the moment came, he closed his eyes, prayed, and trilled it letter perfect—only to sign off with, "This is WJZilch, New York."

Floyd Neale once ended a WOR program with, "This is the Musical Broadcasting System," and André Baruch, also broadcasting for Mutual, signed off, "This is the Columbia Broadcasting System." Phillips Carlin, Mutual's vice-president in charge of programs, sent CBS a bill for $1100 for the ad.

You can't believe that an announcer could foul up the name of his employer? Why, they've been known to foul up their own names! Sterling North, the New York Post's literary critic and the arbiter of WHN's Books on Trial, bade farewell with "This is Sterling Night, saying good north and pleasant reading." Johnnie Johnston opened a program thus: "Good afternoon, ladies and Johnston," and Fred Hoey addressed himself to an even narrower group, "Good afternoon, Fred Hoey. This is everybody speaking." But it remained for Baruch to tangle a line worse than any novice fisherman, "Good ladies, evening and gentlemen of the audio radiance!"

Baruch pulled that king-size fluff in 1935, but he kept his crown only until February, 1936, when he had to abdicate in favor of Mayor George W. Freyermuth, of South Bend, Indiana. The occasion was the eighty-fourth birthday of the Studebaker Company, and Mayor Freyermuth was the guest of honor. The week before, speaking extemporaneously at a Notre Dame football banquet, he had dreamily focused his compliments on the baseball team; so Jim Britt, in charge of the Studebaker broadcast, tried to argue him into writing out his speech as a protection against another slip. The mayor refused; he knew what to say—done it many times before; just leave it to him.

Britt left it, helplessly, and heard him tell a coast-to-coast audience, "Studebaker, I congratulate you! For eighty-four years you have been turning out a product equal to few and superior to none."

Some fluffs make grotesque sense and even give a glimpse of an enchanting vista, as when David Ross recommended a new "mouse wash" or when Ralph Edwards presented "a charming young sinner." It is true that Freddy Martin's orchestra used to play at the Hotel Bossert's Marine Roof—not its Maroon Reef, as Baruch said—but there is something attractively languid and surrealistically bizarre about a maroon reef.

When a statesman declared that he was "unaccustomed to public speakeasies," doubtless it reassured the drys in his constituency; and ex-G. I.'s were patient, though puzzled, when a spokesman for the Veterans Administration warned them that requests should be sent only by "indignant veterans who can prove fifty per cent desirability."

As Doctor Spooner might have put it, Jim Britt was "in the right perch, but the wrong chew," that night in 1941 when, summarizing the day's football games, he said, "Notre Dame seven, Northwestern six, and once again the Fighting Irish have eked out victory by a narrow virgin." The same young lady intruded on Jimmy Wallington, but in a context that made him seem indelicate and presumptive. He had come to the end of a program in the Famous Romances series. The Wedding March throbbed and faded.

And Wallington spoke through happy tears, "So ends another virgin ——"

There are plenty of instances in which an announcer trips along his verbal tightrope with perfect grace and balance, only to find that it has suddenly forked and left him straddling an absurd ambiguity. Byrum Saam, broadcasting from Shibe Park in Philadelphia, watched a long fly soar into left field. "Bob Johnson is backing up for the ball," he reported. "Back—way back . . . he hits his head against the wall, drops it, picks it up and pegs it home!" A dozen letters asked Saam whether Johnson's head reached home on the fly or on first bounce.

A studio announcer at another Pennsylvania station once put a colleague on the air with an unintended sneer, "And now we bring you the dope from the ball parks, Doug Arthur." On a program called The Wife Saver, Allen Prescott offered a recipe for "two people to be cooked in a chafing dish." A wartime British visitor told a CBS audience that, in England, "most men believe that the war will last longer than women." Another CBS audience was warned, "Soot in chimneys is frequently the cause of fire in the home. Why take a chance with your wife and children? Have a fire inspector check them every three months!" And "children" recalls the grisly dietitian who remarked, "A lot of things you are supposed to eat, you just don't like, especially children."

Mispronunciations are not always the announcer's fault alone. Suppose you were shown the printed word "lead"; without a context, you wouldn't know whether to read it "leed" or "led." Such words—identical in spelling, but different in pronunciation—are called homographs. A Boston announcer with no time to study his script found himself confronted with a choice of homographs in the title, The Babe in the Manger. The fact that it was Christmastide should have helped him, but it didn't. He pronounced the last word not "manjer" but "mang-ger," in the innocent belief that the scene would be Boston's famous Hotel Manger.

The 1948 presidential campaign yielded a bumper crop of fluffs. President Truman harvested the first of them at the Jackson Day dinner, when he referred to "those great Democrats, Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt." Then Attorney General Clark introduced Truman at Dallas as "the man who stopped Joe Louis in the Federal courts," and Governor Duff, of Pennsylvania, introduced Governor Warren, of California, as "the next President of the United States." At Julesburg, Colorado, Dewey told a back-platform crowd, "It's great to be

YOU BE THE JUDGE

By CHARLES C. COLLINS

PLAGUED by pungent smells, a New York City apartment resident telephoned police. The police broke into the apartment of a neighbor and found a ten-gallon still going full blast. Around it were nine one-gallon jugs of alcohol. The neighbor was arrested.

"This man," the prosecution charged, "is engaged in illegal manufacture of alcohol and he intends it for illegal sale, as evidenced by his possession of nine gallons of the stuff."

The defendant was indignant. "I wasn't planning to sell a drop of it!" he claimed. "The fact of the matter is that my poor aged mother suffers from arthritis. The doctor prescribed alcohol rubs, using about a pint a day. Drugstore alcohol cost so much that I decided to make my own. Having nine gallons on hand doesn't mean that I planned to sell it. It's just a seventy-two-day supply of rubbing alcohol for my maw."

If you were the judge, would you believe this devoted son and set him free?

* * * * *

The defendant barely beat the rap in this case. After the lower court adjudged him guilty, he appealed. The appellate court held that, even though his arthritis cure story strained judicial credulity to the breaking point, it would have to be accepted in the absence of positive evidence that he had sold, or planned to sell, any of the "rubbing" alcohol.

in Denver!" and at Truckee, California, Truman urged the people of "—er—this place" to get out and vote for him. A CBS commentator wrote an appropriate curtain line to the long comedy of errors: "Dewey has just conceded the election to President Roosevelt."

Maybe the heat of the campaign kept their brains at a soft boil, and maybe the pressure of State Department work had addled Joseph C. Grew's pate when he spoke at that Red Cross luncheon in Washington. His theme was selflessness. To illustrate it, he told how General Marshall, between an exhausting trip to China and an impending one to Europe, had taken time to address the Sunday meeting that had opened the Red Cross campaign, although he had long been looking forward—so Mr. Grew said—"to a week end in the country with Mrs. Eisenhower."

The explosion of laughter woke Mr. Grew to his slip, which was made even more embarrassing by the presence of Mrs. Eisenhower herself. He begged her, "Please forgive me and please apologize to the General for me!"

She choked back her own laughter long enough to ask, "Which General?"

As absent-minded as Mr. Grew, a sports announcer at WTCN became so enthralled by a furious boxing match that he momentarily forgot his audience and remembered it only at the last split second before disaster: "The Kid lands a left and a right and another right! Rocco is groggy! The Kid hits him with a left hook, and there goes an uppercut! It catches Rocco on the button and knocks him flat on ——" He stopped short and began again, trembling: "That is, Rocco is now in a sitting position."

Quick wits saved another sports announcer, broadcasting a University of Pennsylvania football game. "Franny Murray takes the ball," he was saying. "He crosses the thirty-five, the forty ——"

"That's not Murray," his assistant whispered. "It's Elverson."

"——he laterals to Elverson, and ——"

But nothing, not even suicide, could have saved Ralph Edwards, of WBBM. Buttonholing passers-by to be interviewed for his man-in-the-street program, he spied a pretty girl, thrust her the microphone and asked, "First of all, miss, what is your business?"

"I'm a streetwalker," she said. Next question?

Get a guest on a program—especially an impromptu guest—and you've got trouble. For instance, the Henry Morgan show, sponsored by a razor manufacturer, featured a speed-shaving contest in which one afternoon's winner was an Army private.

Morgan congratulated him and, setting up a plug, asked, "How does your face feel?"

Said the private, "Bloody!"

Emotionally, Mary Margaret McBride has developed the shoulders of an Atlas from carrying loads of guest grief. Queena Mario was telling her about the rigors of an opera star's career: regular hours, long practice, strict diet.

"Diet?" Miss McBride asked. "That means lots of vegetables doesn't it?"

"Of course."

"Broccoli?" she suggested, mindful that one of her sponsors was a broccoli distributor.

Miss Mario shuddered. "I loathe the stuff!"

Another guest was Florence Reed, the actress, and another sponsor was a citrus-fruit grower. Miss McBride was hymning the lusciousness of baked grapefruit when Miss Reed suddenly boomed, "I never heard of anything so ghastly!"

Miss McBride has. She once heard herself say something even ghastlier. She had thought she was making a million mouths water over Cushman's cakes when she realized that she was actually praising Schrafft, a rival.

Lou Gehrig fumbled one of those, to let a rival score. Ford Bond had him as a guest on a program about Huskies, the breakfast cereal, and Gehrig played airtight ball right up to Bond's key question, "What is your favorite breakfast, taken with cream, sugar and some sort of fruit?"

Lou's answer was clear and confident: "Why, I always start the day with a great big bowl of Wheaties."

Wheaties! Horror-struck, he jumped away from the mike, ran twenty-five feet, threw his script on the floor and stood there sweating. He returned his check to General Foods, the sponsor, but the story hit the front pages next morning, and the check came back doubled.

Another ballplayer once disrupted another breakfast-cereal program—not by inadvertence, though; by plain mischief. It was Boots Poffenberger, a Dodger, of course. The key question was the same as Lou's, and Boots' answer was just as clear: "Ham, eggs and a couple of bottles of beer!"

Many such guests—frank, forgetful or frisky—have outraged radio's staid studios—calling Doctor Spooner!—but when historians of the industry gather, the guest that memory conjures first, in a hot, unholy light, is Uncle Charlie.

The scene was Richmond, Virginia. The time was August, 1932. And the occasion was a reunion of Confederate veterans, which NBC was covering. Wade Arnold, in charge of the program, had interviewed a dozen old boys beforehand, among them Uncle Charlie, a nimble nonagenarian from New Orleans. His gray uniform was clean and neatly pressed, but it had the greenish patina of great age, and when Arnold asked about it, Uncle Charlie proudly admitted that his "Maw" had made it for him herself, just before he "jined Gen'l Beauregyahd." Arnold liked that. There could be no scripts for Uncle Charlie because he had never learned to read, but Arnold and the announcer rehearsed him in his little speech, and the broadcast began.

The opening number was a rendition of the Rebel Yell by the entire company. Old Captain Culpeper—or perhaps it was Major Dinwiddie—put his heart into it with such gusto that his suspenders broke and his pants fell down. Then Corporal Fairfax—or perhaps Colonel Randolph—was asked if he had a message for the audience. His script called for him to answer, "Yes, if you'll be so indulgent," but his dim old eyes read it as "so indignant." Finally it was Uncle Charlie's turn. The announcer described his uniform and invited him to tell its story.

"Nemmine mah close," said Uncle Charlie. "Ah'll tell you-all sump'n 'bout women's close."

The announcer blanched and began to babble, "Later—delighted, of course. . . . your uniform, though —— won't you ——"

But Uncle Charlie had the bit in his teeth, and away he went. "They's a scandal, that's what! Ah mean short skirts. No matter wheh you go—on the street, in the theayter, in the spo'tin' house ——"

"Yes, yes!" the announcer cried. "Thank you, Uncle Charlie! Thank you very much indeed! And now, ladies and gentlemen ——"

Still, neither the gremlins in charge of garbling, nor the gremlins of grammar, not even the demoniac gremlins who speak through a guest's mouth, can quite match the genius for chaos of the gremlins who play among the knobs and switches of a control board.

A sports announcer was broadcasting a boxing match when his studio cut him off with a bulletin on the mayor's sudden death, then cut him back in. Unaware of the interpolation, he continued briskly, "That sounded like quite a blow, but it doesn't mean a thing, really. No damage done at all."

Back in the '30's, Ford Bond was running a remote pick-up debate on Prohibition. A wet congressman spoke first, from New York; then Bond announced, "And now, for the dry side of the question, we switch to Washington and Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the W.C.T.U. Come in, Washington!"

What came in was a frivolous, boozy song:

I got the blues!
I got the blues!
I got the al-co-hah-ol-lic blues!

Master control had switched not to Washington, but to the Eddie Cantor show in Chicago.

Ben Grauer, though, was the victim of an ordeal that made Bond's seem a mere mosquito bite. All networks were linked for a broadcast by the Pope promptly at 11:04 on a Sunday morning. He would speak from Vatican City, of course, but would be relayed by the more powerful station at Geneva. On the nick of eleven, Grauer leaned toward his microphone. He described the nation-wide hook-up, emphasized the importance of the speech, and ended, "We take you now to Vatican City. The next voice you hear will be that of His Holiness, Pope Pius."

The next voice they heard was singing, "I'll be glad when you're dead, you rascal you!"

Geneva had misread the timetable and was testing with a Cab Calloway record.

Later, someone asked Grauer, "What did you do, Ben?"

"What did I do? What could I do? Voom! We cut to the piano."

HALCYON DAYS

By Arthur Frederic Otis

She's calm by day, she sleeps by night,
She relishes her mashed potato;
In class the lass gets by all right,
She even earned a B in Plato.

No more she wonders whether
Jim
Or Fred or Theodore or Peter
Or Paul will call—she can't stand him!—
And seek an early date to meet her.

Her grades are good, her spirits
high,
The wine of life is clear and heady;
Her woes, she knows, have all passed by
Because, you see, she's going steady!

Saturday Evening Post

28 MAY 1949 Vol 221 #48

Smoke all you want!
...but why take
TOBACCO MOUTH
with you?
[OFF-COLOR BREATH
OFF-COLOR TEETH]
TASTE THAT WINTER-MINT FLAVOR
TOBACCO MOUTH
...give it the "brush-off" with...
LISTERINE TOOTH PASTE
"Feel that Lusterfoam work!"

BEFORE ANY DATE! Use this pure-white tooth paste, with Lusterfoam, that chases tobacco stain and off-color breath.

The most unfortunate thing about "tobacco mouth" is that it becomes part of you so gradually. The only people it gives a "start" to are your friends!

Your friends, your neighbors, your dentist—they all recognize "tobacco mouth" at the drop of a smile. But you, you're never quite sure . . . unless, of course, you are a regular user of Listerine Tooth Paste. There's a good reason why you can be sure—

It contains Lusterfoam—a special ingredient that actually foams cleaning and polishing agents over your teeth . . . into the crevices—removes fresh stain before it gets a chance to "set" . . . whisks away that odor-making tobacco debris!

See for yourself how Listerine Tooth Paste with Lusterfoam freshens your mouth and your breath! Get a tube and make sure that wherever you go—you won't take "tobacco mouth" with you!

Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Electron-Microscope shows difference!

Teeth surfaces magnified 5,000 times illustrate how new scientifically perfected cleaning and polishing agents enable Listerine Tooth Paste to heighten tooth brilliance and surface smoothness . . . attacking a major cause of Tobacco Mouth

Backward Reader

Though many years I've spent in school,
As learner and as leader,
I must confess that as of now
I am a backward reader.
For when the welcome Post arrives,
Procedure is reversed;
With full intent to read it all
I do read "Hazel" first.

Your Slip Is Showing

J. Bryan, III, has written the story that every radioman in the business has always looked forward to writing [RADIO'S MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENTS, Apr. 23]. It is the first time that I ever had to stop reading because of tears in my eyes . . .

VIRGIL CORY
The Sporting News
St. Louis, Mo.

So the truth finally comes out! Even the bigwigs of radio make fluffs now and then . . .

Last November I was announcing election results over our college radio station, WRSU, and I'll have to admit the Democratic victory was too much for me. I announced that Mr. Truman had, at one point, a total of two hundred "electrical volts!"

ROBERT FLECKLES
Rutgers University
New Brunswick, N. J.

. . . On one of your own author's radio shows—namely, Ivan Sanderson and his "Natural Treasures" program over WNBC—our announcer, Radcliffe Hall, tripped up. Instead of saying, "This is the National Broadcasting Company," he said, "This is the Natural Broadcasting Company." Another time it was, "This is the National Birdcasting Company." . . .

VIVIAN CHURCHVALE
Secretary to Ivan T. Sanderson
New York, N. Y.

. . . A contestant on the Eversharp quiz show, when asked what she had received as a gift, proudly declared, "A beautiful Parker pen!" To make matters worse, it was discovered that her name was Shaffer. . . .

ARTHUR HELLANDER
Fargo, N. D.

. . . The best one I heard came from Station WQXR, which specializes in classical music. The announcer gravely told us that the next number would be Mozart's Hoot and Flarp Concerto.

ADOLF C. ROBISON

I resent the implication in RADIO'S MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENTS that "little harm is done" by the typographical errors appearing in newspapers. . . . Perhaps J. Bryan, III, can see no embarrassment for the editor in whose paper an obituary appeared stating that the deceased was the father of a certain young man who was "loving at 196 Main St." It happened to me several years ago and I haven't been able to think of a suitable apology yet.

Dorothy Thompson

I have been a reader of The Saturday Evening Post for some twenty-five years and in all that time I got a lot of laughs out of some of the cartoons and articles printed in it. But never one as hearty as the laugh I had when I read the article HOW I WAS DUPED BY A COMMUNIST, by Dorothy Thompson [Apr. 16]. For crying out loud, what did she want the guy to do, write her a letter to convince her he was a communist? What strange tales do unfold from one who was practically telling us how to run the country a few years back . . .

JOSEPH RYAN
Bridgeport, Conn.

Just read Dorothy Thompson's article. Don't have a bit of sympathy for her. She was a sap like a lot of others—the former President, his wife, Senator Graham and other prominent ones. .

EDWARD M. GALLAGHER
Peosta, Iowa

How about a sequel to Dorothy Thompson's HOW I WAS DUPED BY A COMMUNIST? Perhaps, "How I Was Duped by a Columnist"?

GEORGE STEPHENS, JR.
WILLIAM W. RHOADES
Chapel Hill, N. C.

. . . It takes real character for Miss Thompson to admit to the world her error—though we can see perfectly well it came about through sympathy for this man she had employed, not knowing that he was the "heel" she discovered later. . . .

MRS. CHRISTINE TRULUCK
Gulfport, Miss.

After reading Dorothy Thompson's HOW I WAS DUPED BY A COMMUNIST, I want to assure her of my unbroken appreciation of her work, and of my added esteem and admiration for her courage in acknowledging such a mistake and warning others of such trickery. Her act shows real Americanism. Three cheers for you, Dorothy Thompson!

Here We Go Again

A long time ago I read a letter on the LETTERS TO THE EDITORS page in which a subscriber was complaining bitterly about the address labels being pasted on the cover page in such a way that certain interesting parts of the pictures were blotted out. Beneath the complaint was an answer from the Editors stating that certain adjustments were being made in the mailing system and the disagreeable practice would shortly be eliminated.

Cornycopia Jones

To most big-city Americans, Spike Jones is the silly fellow who louses up music like "Cocktails for Two," "Chloe," and the "William Tell Overture" for the greater hilarity of the record business and radio (CBS, Saturday, 7-7:30 p.m. EST). To an ever-widening group of hinterlanders, however, Jones is the mastermind of the Musical Depreciation Revue, a radio program and a traveling stage show that combines both the good and bad elements of a night with Olsen and Johnson, a wild Fourth of July, and a formal concert—liberally sprinkled with Jones pure-grade corn. Playing each audience against itself—radio, records, and revue—Jones has tightly tied down the King of Corn title.

Until 1942 Lindley Armstrong Jones was an obscure drummer, distinguished only by a jutting jaw which underscored a sad, rather rubbery face. For his own amusement he organized the City Slickers, dedicated to wringing musical parodies out of pistol shots, garbage cans, and cowbells. The music world was coldly unimpressed, until Jones hustled up for RCA Victor a record called "Der Führer's Face." Within 48 hours after its release on Sept. 11, 1942, Jones was on his way to the top of the cornstalk.

For three years the City Slickers toured the theaters, playing five and six shows a day as part of a vaudeville bill, until Jones set up the Revue, a two-and-a-half-hour show with a $1.20 to $3.60 ticket range. Eighteen months ago Coca-Cola bought a refined version of the Revue for the radio audience.

Traveling Freaks: The Revue travels in two Pullman cars and a 70-foot baggage car, bossed by a patient man aptly named Ralph Wonders. While Jones sits in his drawing room thinking up new gimmicks like slot machines that explode on key (at $6 a boom), parachuting stuffed ducks, and harmonized automobile horns, Wonders serves as business manager, keeper of accounts, and counselor to the troupe of 41.

Account keeping is almost a full-time job. For, sold out 99 per cent of the time, the Revue is grossing Jones about $25,750 a week—less operating expenses of $10,000 to $11,000. In addition there are the printed programs, sold by a 7-foot-7-inch giant and a pint-sized midget, at 50 cents apiece. They cost Jones 14 cents each.

While Jones is a sobersided man, giving the impression that all this is somewhat beyond endurance, he has surrounded himself with a rare collection of jugglers, acrobatic dancers, and other freaks. "Doodles" Weaver, whose wackiness is consistent both off and on stage, serves as a singer, mugger, and blackout specialist. Dr. Horatio Q. Birdbath (born Purv Pullin) is around with a variety of eight human voices, 85 animal sounds, 125 birdcalls, and a rare ability at blowing bubble gum.

Spike Jones (low man) and Slickers: Fire is withheld during childbirth

Last week the company spent a rushed week end in New York—between Newark and White Plains engagements—and cut two transcribed radio programs for Coca-Cola. This week the show is heading West—where anything can happen, as it did once in Detroit where a fan had a baby during the show. Respectfully, Jones cut down on the pistol shots until mother and child were removed to safety.

Progress in Kinescope

Little more than a year ago, faced with the problem of supplying programs to the burgeoning TV stations outside the range of coaxial cables, the networks set to developing a device for filming a live television show as it comes over the receiver. Called kinescope recordings by NBC and CBS, video recordings by ABC, and tele-transcriptions by DuMont, the films of top New York-produced programs now are showing up in far-distant places like Salt Lake City, Albuquerque, and Seattle within a week or two after their original telecast. Special events, such as the inauguration, are speeded to stations as fast as planes can carry them.

In New York last week NBC assembled the press to show off its kinescopic achievements. The equipment is tricky and expensive (NBC has just spent $250,000 on a new outfit including four cameras). In spite of constant experimentation, the quality of a kinescoped show is still beneath that of a live program. But to remote stations the recordings mean good video; to the advertisers, a national market; and to the networks, an otherwise impossible number of affiliates.

This year the industry will kinescope some 2,000 hours of programs—or about four times the total footage turned out in 1948 by Hollywood's major studios.

Zenith or Nadir?

The Zenith Radio Corp. last week felt the prick of its own needling. Since March 6 it has been filling the nation's papers with full-page ads proclaiming the Zenith television set as the only one that will not become obsolete when the Federal Communications Commission changes present channel allocation (NEWSWEEK, March 21). At the same time the infant and wobbly television market has been affected by misunderstood statements from the FCC. But the big manufacturers like Philco and the Radio Corp. of America, with plunging radio sales to be steadied, have taken the onslaught in seething silence, leaving the yelling to the littler fellows. On March 22 two of the littler fellows filed a joint suit in New York Supreme Court, asking $1,000,000 damages from Zenith.

Sightmaster Corp., a manufacturer of TV sets, and the Empire Coil Co., Inc., a component parts maker, found the ads "false and misleading," full of representations that were made "maliciously." As a result of the ads, the suit went on, both Sightmaster and Empire had lost sales and consequent revenue. In asking the court to make good the losses, Sightmaster and Empire were in effect trying to make Zenith put up or shut up.

To FCC Chairman Wayne Coy, whose original statements inspired Zenith's ads, the whole obsolescence issue was "something of a tempest in a teapot." On March 23 in a speech to the Baltimore Advertising Club, Coy tried to set the record straight with the plainest words he knew. No matter what the commission does in the way of changing allocations, Coy said, "the problem of obsolescence will be a relatively minor one . . . If I lived in Baltimore [which currently has three TV stations] I would have no hesitancy today in buying a television receiver."

Dorothy Lamour says...

"I like The Shamrock because:

I revel in the luxurious comfort of a hotel like The Shamrock. I like the restful appeal of its interior designing . . . the thrilling atmosphere of the dining and ballrooms . . . the excitement of being among people who come to The Shamrock from all over the nation. I like The Shamrock because it does so much for you to make life there a wonderful adventure."

Whodunit?

The redhead in Apartment 1-A was strangled first. Then the redhead in 2-B and the one in 3-C got theirs. All died at the hands of "The Creeper," a sinister, unseen character in last week's Suspense play over CBS television. But after the murder of Georgia, the redhead who lived in 4-D, Georgia came back to haunt her scripters and the network.

Since network television rules forbid any act of violence to be shown (after all, Greek tragedy had the same convention), Georgia was done in just offscreen. A man's voice murmured: "What nice lipstick you use . . ." Georgia shrieked and dropped the phone she was using. The camera panned blankly at the phone while the dirty work was done.

Minutes after Suspense was officially ended, Georgia was on the haunt. In all, more than 2,500 phone calls jammed CBS's Manhattan switchboard. Everyone had the same reasonable question: Whodunit? Apparently the scripters thought they had made it plain: "The Creeper" was the locksmith who had just come to fix Georgia's front door. Why, then, had the TV audience been confused?

The answer, CBS finally decided, was that most people tend to retain what they see more readily than what they hear. Television, which demands closer visual attention than the ordinary, unselected sights of everyday life, closer even than movies, may exaggerate this tendency. The TV audience had not seen the locksmith, but had heard him speak several times during the play. Yet, reasons CBS, the audience was looking so hard that it forgot to listen, and could not place the murderer's voice. Later that night CBS was forced to telecast a "news bulletin" announcing the identity of the killer.

The incident held a lesson for television: tell it through the vision. It was a lesson that radio-trained telecasters badly needed. If they learned it, red-haired Georgia did not die in vain.

Program Preview

For the week starting Friday, April 29. Times are E.D.T., subject to change.

NBC Symphony (Sat. 6:30 p.m., NBC). Mozart's overture to Cosi fan tutte, and "Prague" Symphony No. 38; the orchestral suite from Stravinsky's ballet Petrouchka. Conductor: Erich Leinsdorf.

NBC Theater (Sun. 9 p.m., NBC-TV). Macbeth, with Walter Hampden.

Theatre Guild on the Air (Sun. 9:30 p.m., ABC). Galsworthy's The Skin Game, with Charles Laughton and Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

BOSTON'S FAMED
Parker House

Traveler's Tale . . .

With the exception of the years during which the now practically extinct sellers' market prevailed, once every month, John Constant Traveler, salesman for All American Business Corporation, has visited Boston. His method of transportation varies between bus, car, train or plane, but his destination, as in pre-war years, continues to be Boston's Parker House.

BOSTON'S FAMED PARKER HOUSE
John Constant Traveler's Boston Home

No fool, John Constant Traveler has more tangible reasons than the room clerk's smile for his continued patronage of the Parker House.* His business takes him to department stores, wholesale houses, industrial firms, insurance companies. From the Parker House he reaches them all within a few minutes. At night, the theatre district and moving picture houses are just a short walk away. John Traveler has found that famed Parker House hospitality, accommodations and food are no empty words . . . . his room is attractive, cheerful; his bed is soft, comfortable, his private bathroom has combination tub and shower, large fluffy absorbent towels. Circulating ice water flows from the tap and there is a four station radio right at his bedside. Although he dines most often in the popular price Revere Room, where speedy service is the watchword, he entertains customers and friends in the beautiful main dining room or clubby Colonial Grill Room.

When travelers or young salesmen planning their first visits to Boston ask John Constant Traveler's advice as to where they should stay, is it any wonder that his unhesitating, emphatic recommendation is always "The Parker House of course"!

Rooms begin at $4.50. All have circulating ice-water, bath, 4-network radio.*

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, June 25, the 176th day of 2006. There are 189 days left in the year.

On this date:

In 1788, the state of Virginia ratified the U.S. Constitution.

In 1876, Lt. Col. George A. Custer and his 7th Cavalry were wiped out by Sioux and Cheyenne Indians in the Battle of the Little Bighorn in Montana.

In 1942, some 1,000 British Royal Air Force bombers raided Bremen, Germany, during World War II.

In 1950, war broke out in Korea as forces from the communist North invaded the South.

In 1951, the first commercial color telecast took place as CBS transmitted a one-hour special from New York to four other cities.

In 1962, the Supreme Court ruled that the use of an unofficial, nondenominational prayer in New York State public schools was unconstitutional.

In 1967, the Beatles performed their new song, "All You Need Is Love," during a live international telecast.

In 1973, former White House Counsel John W. Dean began testifying before the Senate Watergate Committee.

In 1991, the western Yugoslav republics of Croatia and Slovenia declared their independence.

In 1995, Warren Burger, the 15th chief justice of the United States, died in Washington at age 87.

Ten years ago: A truck bomb killed 19 Americans and injured hundreds at a U.S. military housing complex in Saudi Arabia.

Five years ago: The United Nations opened its first global gathering on HIV/AIDS with emotional pleas for help from African leaders. Pope John Paul II, on a visit to Ukraine, offered a prayer for Holocaust victims at Babi Yar.

One year ago: Hardline Tehran Mayor Mahmoud Ahmadinejad was declared the winner of Iran's presidential runoff election. The NAACP selected retired Verizon executive Bruce S. Gordon to be its new president.
